Wickersham Commission Seems Badly Split On Prohibition

Commission Is Severely Split On Prohibition

Not Likely That Wickersham Commission Can File Report Without Row

MEMBERS ENTER CONTROVERSIES

Many Rumors As To Findings Reported As Commission Meets In Secret

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—President Hoover's law enforcement commission is so divided in its views on prohibition that it is wholly unlikely it can produce any report which will not be the subject of controversy among its own members, much less the public.

Since the commission went into retirement some days ago to wrestle with its problem all sorts of rumors have flitted about. It has been variously reported that the commission would ultimately recommend retention of the 18th Amendment, that it would endorse modification of the Volstead Act up to 4 per cent beer, that it would favor a sort of modified Canadian system of control, and that it would propose a National Constitutional Convention to solve the liquor problem.

Cannot Agree

All of these rumors have been denied at one stage or another, and seemingly with some justice.

The fact is, according to the most authoritative sources, that the commissioners are so badly split that they not only cannot agree on what

Democratic Leaders May Force Administration To Call Special Session

COOPERATION BEING TESTED

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The pledge of some Democratic leaders to cooperate with the Hoover administration will be given a severe test at the coming "lame duck" session of congress, it appeared today, as Insurgent and Democratic leaders urged the calling of the newly elected congress into special session next spring.

The Hoover administration will oppose a special session, which might be forced only through the defeat of the vitally necessary appropriation bills by filibustering or other dilatory tactics in the regular short session, thus forcing both Insurgent and Democratic spokesmen have denied any intention to filibuster but have insisted there is so much legislative needed that a special session will be justified.

There are some indications the newly elected congress would not convene before next fall. The Presidential spokesman, for one thing, oppose either a spring or summer session of the new congress. The opposition likewise has declared against filibustering and has indicated its strategy will be to convince the country that a special session is necessary and then to decamp, without forcing one letting the administration "hold the bag."

Get 58 Cents From One Of Two Safes Burglarized Last Night

Yeggs who entered the railroad station of the Western Allegheny last night got only 58 cents for their return though they ruined the door of the safe. When they also entered a nearby gasoline station and found the safe door open they discovered no money in the box.

The yeggs secured a heavy hammer and a crowbar from the railroad toolhouse, pried open the Western Allegheny station window then hammered through the door of the safe. No doubt they were dismayed when they found only 58 cents and their discomfiture was double when they found no money at all in the gasoline station safe.

Codicil To Will Reveals Playford Planned Tragedy

Codicil To Will Filed For Probate Gives New Facts In Uniontown Tragedy

SISTER BROTHER TO SHARE ESTATE

Legal Complications Expected Over Wording Of Added Part To Last Will

(International News Service)

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 18.—Indications that R. W. Playford, prominent Fayette county attorney who last week shot and killed himself his wife and the couple's three children, had carefully planned to wipe out his family were seen here today with the filing of Playford's will for probate.

A significant tone pervaded a codicil to the will which was scrawled in lead pencil. The codicil, believed to have been added to the testament just a week before Playford annihilated his family, was discovered in a safety deposit box in a local bank. It read in part:

"In the event of the death of my wife and all my children, before my death, I give all my estate to my brother, Charlie, and my sister, Blanche—if my wife and all my children pre-decease me, then I give to the Union cemetery $500 in trust for the maintenance of the Playford burying lot."

Possible legal complications over the peculiar wording of the codicil were seen here in ultimate distribution of the Playford estate. Only one of the children died before Playford, the other two daughters and Playford's wife dying later. Nancy, 13-year-old daughter, died instantly, just a few minutes before Playford fatally wounded himself, authorities say. Margaret died soon after her father and Pauline, another daughter, lived for three hours. Mrs. Playford died 14 hours after the tragedy.

It was believed, however, that the bulk of the estate estimated at $150,000 would go to Charles Playford and Blanche Playford as the codicil directs.

Congress Members Swamped By Petitions For Cash Payment Of Certificates

TREASURY HEADS OPPOSED TO PLAN

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Demands for payment of soldiers' adjusted service compensation certificates in cash, totalling upwards of $3,000,000, are rolling in upon members of Congress from all parts of the country, it was disclosed today.

Returning members report that petitions have been received from many quarters, and definite movements are under way in many sections to create sentiment for the proposal.

Plan Opposed

Although the treasury has opposed the plan, the pressure behind the movement is such that it may become a live issue immediately after the session opens in December.

More than 30 members have introduced bills to this effect in the house, and more bills are expected to be placed in the hopper early next month. The first move of backers of the movement will be a demand for a hearing before the House Ways and Means committee.

Rep. Wright Patman (D) of Texas said today the proposal has gathered strength as a measure of speeding business by increasing the buying power of veterans. He has received reports that treasury experts are studying the situation in anticipation of congressional demands.

CITIZENS CONFER WITH CITY-COUNTY OFFICIALS ON BRIDGE PROJECT

Fifty Attend Conference On Proposed Lawrence Street Bridge

BOTH SIDES OF MATTER HEARD

Many Features Of Situation Are Brought Out At Morning Conference

Arguments both for and against the immediate construction of a bridge over Lawrence street by the county were advanced at a conference held in the court house this morning, when the county commissioners, members of city council, and representative citizens of the city met to discuss the matter.

Approximately 50 men were present, and the matter was discussed from all angles for almost two hours, the meeting ending in a virtual impasse, when no decision was reached as to when the bridge would be built.

Commissioners Opposed

The county commissioners were united in opposing the construction of the bridge at this time, arguing that there was no money available for the purpose. Commissioner T. J. McCullough stating emphatically that he would not be forced in the matter.

He clashed verbally with a number of the speakers in favor of building the bridge, and stated that if those who were so much in favor of building the bridge so desired, they could run for the office of county commissioner next year, and would be welcome to the job.

"It's wide open," McCullough said. "And I'm through."

The argument was advanced that even though the county had not the money at the present time, that they could float a bond issue, and that the interest on the bonds necessary to build the bridge, would only cost about $5,000 a year.

Meeting Opens

The meeting was opened with Quincey A. McBride being named as chairman.

Mr. McBride briefly outlined the history of the Lawrence street project, from the time of its inception back in 1927, when he, C. Ed Smith, Jr., and S. D. Pearson were named as a committee by the Chamber of Commerce on highways and bridges.

He stated that at that time a bridge building program was outlined, calling for the construction of a bridge over North street and

Giant German Plane Will Await Good Weather For Flight To Spain

(International News Service)

BORDEAUX, France, Nov. 18.—Threatening weather and heavy fogs today delayed the projected take-off for Spain of the flying boat DO-X, which remained anchored here in Gironde Estuary.

Dr. Claude Dornier, designer and builder of the airship, declared the trip to Spain and Lisbon would be made as soon as possible, but final decision in regards to the trans-Atlantic flight has not been made.

French air ministry officials and newspapermen were given the opportunity yesterday to inspect and judge the merits of the ship at first hand. The seaplane went aloft twice during the day, each time carrying 40 invited guests.

Later in the day Dornier announced that the departure of the DO-X for Spain would be postponed until arrangements have been completed with Spain for landing and refueling of the ship there.

It was foggy and he was not sure but from the car it looked like the body of a man. He got out and on going up to the object found that it was that of a man, lying face downward. There was blood all around and the skin of the man indicated death.

He went back and informed Mrs. Gregg, who returned to the house and had her husband, Howard Gregg, telephone the Pittsburgh police.

Freighter Goes Aground Near New York, Rescue Attempts Started

NIGHT SPENT ON MAROONED VESSEL

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—An attempt to rescue the crew of 36 men on the freighter Harry Bowen, aground off Montauk Point, was to be made today. The crew spent the night on the stranded vessel but this morning were reported safe.

The Harry Bowen went aground in a heavy fog, described as one of the worst in years, which blanketed the entire Atlantic seaboard yesterday. Twenty-three fishermen were rescued in lifeboats from the trawler petrel, which went ashore on Block Island. Coast guards also rescued the crew of the Tatler, which grounded attempting to respond to an SOS from the Harry Bowen.

Eight liners, with about 2,200 passengers, held at quarantine off Sandy Hook during the night, were expected to dock today. The ships held back by the fog were the Conte Grande, the Coamo, the Ancon, the Verdam, the California, the Silvia, the Munamar and the Dresden.

Condition of Nurse Better

Miss Henrietta Eakin, Former New Castle Woman, Hit Last Week By Auto

Latest report from Butler in regard to the condition of Miss Henrietta Eakin, executive secretary of the Butler County Tuberculosis Society, is that she is improving and will perhaps recover from injuries received a week ago when hit by an automobile in Butler.

Miss Eakin is well known in New Castle, having graduated from the Shenandoah Valley hospital, and having resided here for several years. She was elected president of the Shenandoah Valley Nurses Alumni Association and a short time ago resigned because of being appointed to the Butler County Tuberculosis Society executive position, on September 1, this year.

On Monday, November 10, three days following the accident, it was discovered that Miss Eakin had suffered a compound fracture of the skull and fracture of the vertebrae. X-rays were taken and Miss Eakin was given treatment. Her condition was critical.

Instead of going to the hospital, for three days after being hit by the automobile, Miss Eakin continued with her work. On Monday she felt dizzy and faint and it was then that her true condition was found.

She is now being cared for at her home on McKean street and physicians are hopeful of her complete recovery.

A manufacturer of mill machinery agreed to build certain machines for a mill owner and also to install them in the mill. The contract for the machines provided that the machines have a specified capacity, be capable of operation by a stated number of workmen and also that the mill owners were to be fully satisfied with the machines, the quality of the work and their durability before the payment was required. The machines were to be in place six months from the time of the placing of the order, but somehow the machines did not work properly and the mill owner extended the time another six months. But at the end of that time the mill owner wrote rejecting the entire outfit whereupon the manufacturer filed suit.

COMMISSION IS SEVERELY SPLIT ON PROHIBITION

changes, if any, are to be recommended in existing law, but they cannot agree as to the fundamental right of the commission to propose any change in any law.

Several members take the view that it is not within the province of the commission to recommend changes in the laws; that it is the sole duty of the commission to suggest ways and means of securing better enforcement of the laws now existent. They point to the name of the body itself, as given it by President Hoover, "the national commission on law observance and enforcement." "There is nothing in that title, they say, that suggests any law revision.

A majority of the commission, however, does not agree with this view. But even in the majority that does not agree there is not unanimity of opinion as to just how far the commission may go in proposing modification.

Only Future Can Tell As to what will be the ultimate outcome of the deliberations and divided councils only the future can tell. The members themselves do not like to hazard guesses, for the differences are so great and so apparently deep-rooted that it is considered improbable a report can be written that will command the support of more than seven of the eleven members. That there will be a majority report and one, or more, minority reports seems assured.

A divided report will not be of much assistance to a divided congress and a divided public opinion. It is the realization of this that keeps the commission going on and on in quest of an agreement that, at this time, seems impossible. The Wickham commission has now been in existence about a year and a half. At the time of its formation, it was estimated that it would take a year to complete its studies and report. The year has passed and half another one and still the commission is at loggerheads.

There was impatience manifested in congress last summer over the delay in the report. An appropriation to permit continuance of the work was old secured after a hard fight in which a number of senators, dry as well as wet, spoke disparagingly of it.

Congress comes back twelve days hence with prohibition the dominant thought in many of the members' minds. It is quite likely that unless the commission is able to free itself of its own controversial shackles very shortly there is going to be a storm about it in congress of no small proportions.

STAR LORE LIMITED RANGE OF THE EYE RADIANT WAVES

It seems a remarkable thing that only a limited few vibrations of radiation emitted by the sun and stars appeal to the human eye as light. That region of the spectrum which the eye can detect is located between the short wave violet vibrations, and the long wave red. Below the red waves are the longer heat waves and the still longer Hertzian or radio waves, while above violet vibrations are the shorter ultra-violet, the X-rays, and the cosmic rays that are shortest and the most penetrating of all. Why the infra-red waves and the ultra-violet vibrations do not impress the sight nobody knows.

Produce Dealers Must Get License; Farmers Exempted

Penalties For Failure Prescribed By Perishable Commodities Act Of 1930

Approximately 20 commission merchants, dealers or brokers in fresh fruits and vegetables in interstate trade of New Castle and Lawrence county must procure Federal licenses from the United States Department of Agriculture by December 10.

The head of a local produce house said he had not been informed of the regulation that requires the licenses. Other houses in the city are aware of the requirement, it was learned today.

Failure to obtain the license by December 10 will make the persons who must possess a license subject to a fine not to exceed $500 plus $5 for each day they operate without licenses.

These penalties are prescribed by the perishable agricultural commodities act of 1930. Cooperative associations which market the products of their members either direct or through agents or distributors also must take out licenses.

Approximately 30,000 produce dealers in the United States are subject to the provisions of this law. Applications for licenses should be filed at once in order to insure licensing by December 10. Applications may be obtained from the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

The Federal departments announced the provisions of the licensing law several months ago, and urged members of the produce trade to procure licenses before the date set by Congress, December 10. Nevertheless, only a few thousand applications have been received to date. Government officials declare that they are without power to extend the date of issuance of licenses, and that they will be compelled to carry out the penalty provisions after December 10.

Farmers who sell only produce which they raise are exempt from the law. Any person buying produce solely for sale at retail, not to exceed twenty carloads in any calendar year, also is exempt.

Three Boulevards In Pittsburgh To Ban Horse Vehicles

Traffic Congestion May Be Reduced By Order From Safety Director

(International News Service) PITTSBURGH, Nov. 18.—In an effort to reduce traffic congestion which has assumed the aspects of a serious problem here, Safety Director James M. Clark today announced that horse-drawn vehicles will be banned from busy portions of three city boulevards during a 60-day test period to begin on November 24 next.

Clark's action is in line with a request from the city fathers who recommended that a trial of the horse-drawn vehicles prohibition on the three main traffic arteries be made before a formal ordinance is passed by city council.

Woman Held Here Taken To Erie In Mysterious Murder

Claims She Does Not Know Anything About It But Is To Be Questioned

Frances Demko, alias Betty Ann Stern, who was arrested by County Detective Lee as an inmate of a disorderly house near Ellwood City, and who completed a thirty day sentence in the county jail Sunday, has been taken to Erie, Pa., by County Detective Lenz of Erie and State Trooper, Bernard Moran, where she is wanted as a material witness in the murder of Anthony Ruberto. She was turned over to the Erie officials by Sheriff Frank Johnston.

Ruberto was found shot to death in his car on August 8, his body being riddled by bullets. It is claimed that Betty Ann Stern was with Anthony Ruberto who had driven to the scene of the murder. Ruberto was acquitted at a recent term of Erie county court. Betty claims that she was not with him and that she was serving a jail sentence in another town at the time of the murder.

District Attorney Herbst of Erie county is holding Eugene Zappatelli and Frank Bartone in connection with the murder. Betty is wanted in Erie for an interview with the district attorney as to whether or not she knows anything about Zappatelli and Bartone. The prisoners, who are defended by Charles J. Margiotti of Punxsutawney, who was here in the Schneider-Dague murder cases, claim that they do not know the woman.

Whether or not they will be held for connection with the murder will be determined by the Erie District Attorney after he has had an interview with Betty.

The decision to withhold the invitation to come here next year was unanimous on the part of the committee.

FEASIBLE AIDS TO EMPLOYMENT?

WHILE not in any way reflecting on the merits of the bridge and viaduct projects, or those suggesting them as means of aiding employment here, it occurs to us that what is needed to be of quick relief in the unemployment situation, is some work that can be done without elaborate preparation, and which will afford employment to men who are not skilled in any particular line.

Numerous plans come to mind. While we have not delved into any of them to test their feasibility, they look plausible on the surface and we believe would provide the kind of work that is needed at the present time if they could be financed.

For instance the problem of flood prevention is recurring almost every summer. Why not have some work done on this project? Why not take the rocks out of the river bed, break them up and use them as a base for some of the streets in outlying sections of the city that will not be paved for many years?

Why not tear down some of the dilapidated buildings in various parts of the city that are eyesores?

Yes, why not raze the old Martin Gantz school building? There is nothing that it will ever be used for, so far as can be forecasted at this time. The bricks could be used as foundation on some of the streets about the city, the same as stone taken from the rivers.

Why not put into effect the plan of Poor Director M. B. Hogue to clear off the strip mine east of the city under the plan he suggested, paying the men for the work and securing coal cheaply for the benefit of the poor?

Why not make semi-permanent roadway to the new plant of the Burton Explosives company, or down to the Baltimore and Ohio shops below the Seventh ward?

Why not remove the old car tracks on Hamilton street and on other streets of the city where they are no longer in use?

Why not improve some of the side roads in the county that are in low lying ground, and hard to travel in the spring or wet weather; by raising them a little by use of crushed stone foundations? Stone could easily be secured in most sections near the roadways.

If we are to get at the relief of unemployment we must needs undertake work that can be done speedily and without the necessity of a lot of scientific direction or planning.

Probably there are many other suggestions along the line outlined that could be added, or perhaps there are some that are even more feasible, and of more importance to both the community and the unemployed.

We are only offering these as a suggestion that may help to bring some beneficial result.

THE WELFARE OF AMERICAN CHILDREN

Two hundred experts are to assemble at the White House this week for a four-day session which is to consider the welfare of American children.

The secretary of the interior, who is to preside says that the ill and the prospective ill of 48,000,000 children in this country will be figuratively placed under the microscope. Of this number 28,000,000 are in school, 4,000,000 are at work and 1,200,000 are in child-caring institutions.

It is estimated that 200,000 of this vast army get into the courts in the course of a year and at least three per cent in the elementary schools are "behavior problems."

It is said that of the total number 1,500,000 are specially gifted and ought to have special training in order to make the most of their opportunities; 450,000 in the lower schools are mentally retarded; from 3,000,000 to 5,000,000 are handicapped in one way or another and 6,000,000 are badly nourished.

Surely there is ample justification for making a thorough study of the whole question of child welfare for the benefit of humanity declares the Philadelphia Inquirer. The idea originated with President Hoover and is being carried out under the direction of Secretary Wilbur. Every child is entitled to a square deal, and we know only too well that large numbers of them do not get it. Dr. Wilbur rightly contends that the child of today needs better chances for physical development, more space for play, a stable home "and the affection and encouragement of his family to fortify him for successful contacts with the world."

The best part of the forthcoming conference is that no one expects to bring about the hoped-for improvement by legislation. Other means will be employed. We now have hundreds—possibly thousands—of organizations devoted in one way or another to the welfare of the young. The aim of this meeting is to have a useful discussion of the numerous problems confronting society in order to co-ordinate the work of the societies now in existence.

It is a worth-while meeting and it deserves the support and goodwill of the American people.

THAT OLD CAT:

The cat didn't want to move. He loved that house, he felt at home in it. He knew every corner of it, every stick of furniture in the place. He'd purred before that fire place. He had friends in the neighborhood, he did, and he didn't want to leave. All this excitement was a personal insult. All this moving things and packing up things and tearing things up and making all this dust and disturbance was a crime against a sensible cat.

So he growled and moaned and complained as he was shifted from chair to chair—as he watched old favorites go out the door—as men he'd never seen before took this family furniture and laid it away in an enormous van. His whiskers drooped, his eyes glowed with rage and grief, and finally he could stand it no longer.

One leap and he was gone. One leap and he was out the window, and into shrubbery and around the house, and up a narrow space between two walls. And he couldn't get out or he refused to get out—he never explained about that—and the family had to get the fire department before he was "rescued" clawing and spitting and furious, and taken away to the new house.

In the new house he sulked. For days he refused to be happy. He wouldn't eat, either. He was mad at the family. But finally he did eat and felt better and found his old chair and his old rug again, and even purred at the family and rubbed his back against adjacent legs.

In a week you wouldn't have known he's ever lived anywhere else and he'd fought against going back to the old place.

I hope when I finally go, that I'll have more sense than that old cat. When I see everything moving and feel a great commotion around me and see dear things getting dimmer and finally going clean out of sight, I do hope I'll not yammer and yowl and scratch and bemoan. I hope I don't make such a nasty fuss, as it this had never happened to anybody in earth before. And I hope I'll be as lucky as that old cat and find the old furniture and my best friends somewhere else, just as comfortable, just as friendly, as ever.

I hope so, anyway. It didn't do that old cat any good to kick up such a row. I'll not do me any good, either, when I come to my own last Moving Day.

"What is this Hollywood?" said Maurice Dekobra, French author and traveler who arrived in the Talking-Motion Picture Capital late in October. "I will see for myself," he said, "what this is that I hear so much about."

For twenty years, "M. Dekobra continued, "I have been a newspaper man. I care not a whit about politics and such as that. My interest lies in human life and the things that make it do this and that. Will I find something in Hollywood?"

"Shake," said the newspaper boys when they learned he was one of them in more ways than one. And then they predicted that he would find plenty in Hollywood of interest to the student of life. Fact is, they told him so.

Said the monsieur:

"Your American life intrigues me. I have been here many times, but never before was I west of the Rockies. Let me tell you what I intend to write about now."

"I will write the story of the son of one of America's greatest capitalists of industry or business magnates who has millions and millions of dollars."

With his money he realizes that he can buy friends, public officials, entertainment, in fact, America is at his feet.

"But this young man, he has brains. He leaves it all and goes to Paris. There he takes quarters in a shabby part of the city. He goes to work at something and he carves a name for himself without his money in a place where the American magic of his name means nothing."

"Wait a minute, monsieur," cried his interviewers. "You know that could not be. Always they come to this country to carve their way. Would you picture France as a land of opportunity for Americans?"

"Ah, ha," replied Dekobra, "there is where I fool you. It is the difference."

Dekobra is the author of "Madonna of the Sleeping Cars," "The Perfumed Tiger," "The Sphinx Has Spoken."

Roosevelt Gains In Support For Presidential Nomination

Personal Triumph In New York State, Despite Tammany Charges, Declared To Have Increased His Influence In National Field

Estimates of the standing of Franklin D. Roosevelt, as a result of the New York election, range from expressions of certainty that he will be the Democratic candidate in 1932 to recognition that he is among the leading contenders for the position of Democratic standard-bearer. A few adverse judgments are based upon his failure to take certain steps in relation to corruption that has been charged to Tammany influence. In such estimates it is contended that endorsement in New York does not assure similar support in other states.

Voicing its enthusiastic approval of the OKLAHOMA CITY OKLAHOMAN (Ind.) says: "He is the outstanding governor of the country and the outstanding man in his party. His re-election by the largest majority ever cast for a gubernatorial candidate in his state has caught the popular imagination and set people to talking and thinking of him in every precinct in America. There is no American alive today whose political future carries with it more promise."

"His victory means his nomination for president in 1932 by the Democratic national convention, probably on the first ballot," in the opinion of the JERSEY CITY JOURNAL (Ind. Rep.), while the PORT HURON TIMES-HERALD (Ind.) holds that there is to many "practical assurance of his nomination," as "certainly he has an outstanding lead for the place at the head of his party in 1932." The LOS ANGELES EXPRESS (Rep.) believes that his "re-election as an open and avowed advocate of repeal of the 18th amendment practically insures his nomination for president on the Democratic ticket." The YAKIMA DAILY REPUBLICAN (Ind.) concludes that "unless the disclosures over the sale of judicial offices in Tammany out New York Democracy as a whole in disrepute. Franklin D. Roosevelt's name will appear at the head of the ticket."

"Will the election of Roosevelt with such a tremendous majority of all the votes cast be received by the Democrats of the country as notice that he must be nominated as the party candidate for the presidency?" asks the UTICA OBSERVER-DISPATCH (Ind.), offering as its own answer: "We believe that it will; although nothing is certain as to the political lunacy at the end of the next 18 months." The ATLANTA JOURNAL (Dem.) calls his victory "by an unparalleled majority nothing short of epoch-making."

That he is the leading contender is the verdict of the PROVIDENCE JOURNAL (Ind.), the MINNEAPOLIS STAR (Ind.), the JACKSON CITIZEN (Miss.), the SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE (Ind.), and the MEMPHIS COMMERCIAL APPEAL (Dem.).

The ASHEVILLE CITIZEN-TIMES (Ind. Dem.) calls him "far and away the party's most powerful vote-getter," and adds that "a candidate who can be reasonably sure of carrying New York state for the presidency has a long start on any potential rival."

The CHARLOTTE OBSERVER (Ind. Dem.) points out that "in all discussions of the Roosevelt candidacy for governor was the proposition that upon his success depended the probability of his nomination as the Democratic standard bearer in the next national campaign."

"His triumph puts him nearer his party's nomination," asserts the HARTFORD TIMES (Ind. Dem.) while the HARTFORD TIMES (Ind. Dem.) maintains that "this success not only heartens his party everywhere, but places him in the forefront for Democratic presidential consideration in 1932." The UNIONTOWN HERALD (Rep.) states that in his success "he went far toward nominating himself as the Democratic presidential candidate."

The PASADENA STAR-NEWS (Rep.) asserts: "Franklin D. Roosevelt is pre-destined by a landslide, and he becomes a stronger factor than ever in the Democratic race in 1932." The BURLINGTON EVENING NEWS (Rep.) comments: "It is such an expression of confidence as seldom has been given to any candidate for public office in his commonwealth."

"He is in a position to direct the policies of his party in this state at least, and perhaps in a wider field."

"He is the master of his party in New York, independent of all machines," says the NEW YORK SUN (Ind.), adding: "He says as the chief executive of the greatest state with a clear mandate. We shall see what he makes of his power and his efforts."

The MANCHESTER UNION (Ind. Rep.) reviews the party situation with the statement: "Very likely he is wise in his decision to let political Nature take her course. Thanks to the election results he is today easily the outstanding figure among the 'mentioned' for the honor of being the Democratic standard bearer in the next campaign. He is not going to do anything to focus attention of the party upon him. There is enough talk of and for Roosevelt in 1932 to serve the purposes of a real candidate. Not that other party leaders are altogether obscured. There is Governor Ritchie of Maryland, for instance a man of ability, four times elected chief executive of his state, a prominent champion of the 'wet' cause long before Governor Roosevelt became committed to the idea of prohibition revision. There is Senator Robinson, who ought to be able to command quite a lot of backing, and there is former Senator Reed of Missouri, who has an eye on the nomination and can be, on occasion, a bitter fighter for what he wants. There are rising lights in the Democracy in Ohio and Connecticut and other states. But none of them, as it happens, shines as brightly as Roosevelt beacons."

A more vigorous policy in exposing Tammany corruption and in bringing culprits to justice might have placed him in better standing for the presidential nomination," is the dissenting opinion of the DES MOINES REGISTER (Ind. Rep.) and the SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) REPUBLIC

Take Short, Cold Bath For Beneficial Effects If Condition Warrents

More Blood And Nutrition Carried To Body By Cooling Shower, Says Doctor, Without Drugs Or Magic

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
The short cold bath is one of the most beneficial agents, whether in health or in some diseased condition. It must, however, be properly applied.

It cannot be undertaken by everyone. It should not be attempted when the body is cold. According to Dr. W. H. Riley, an authority on hydrotherapy, it is usually a good plan to take a warm bath before taking a cold one. At least the body should be warm.

Never take a cold bath when the body is very tired, as it increases the activities of all the organs and liberates energy. The ability to react to the cold bath is greatly limited when the body is tired.

In infancy and old age, the use of cold water is not beneficial, or it is, only in special instances.

When there is a weakness of the kidneys or heart, or when the blood pressure is abnormal, cold should always be used very cautiously, and in advanced degrees of the diseases just mentioned it should not be allowed at all.

These things out of the way, in people to whom they do not apply it is a splendid form of treatment. In fact, a splendid habit.

A short cold bath increases the circulation of the blood. It is well known that the action of the organs inside the body are changed by changing conditions on the outside of the body. The skin is one of the most wonderful organs of the body. Connected as it is by a billion nerve filaments to the automatic as well as central nervous system centers impulses made upon it affect the entire organism.

Especially is this true about the action of the heart and blood vessels. Cold impinging on the nerve endings in the skin, they send impulses to the spinal cord and to the ganglia of the vegetative nervous system which controls the heart and blood vessels. The heart beats less rapidly, but more strongly. The vessels contract, but increase in tone. More blood, and hence more nutrition, is carried to the entire body.

One of the striking effects of the short cold bath is on the muscles. It immediately increases muscle tone, muscle endurance and capacity for work. Since the blood flows through them with greater force, waste products are eliminated. The output of solid solids in the urine is increased.

The breathing is deepened and made more rapid. The blood hence receives more oxygen. The appetite is stimulated.

Its effect on the nutrition of the skin is one of its most valuable features. First contracting the blood vessels of the skin, and hence causing pallor, they later dilate, bringing a rich supply of blood to all its parts.

So many results from so simple a procedure. No drugs. No magic. No ductless glands. Just cold water. Can be done in any American bathroom.

Vice President Saves His Son

Vice President Curtis Gives Son $400 To Keep Him In Chicago Home

(International News Service)
CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—Vice president Charles Curtis could not bear to think of his son, Attorney Harry K. Curtis, being evicted from his home for non-payment of rent so he dug up $400 in cash and telegraphed it here.

A bailiff, four assistants and a representative of a Chicago bank descended upon the younger Mr. Curtis' apartment yesterday to evict him and place his furniture out on the street unless $887 in back rent was paid.

Only the attorney's young wife was at home. Her protests failed to move the bailiff from his original purpose unless the money was forthcoming. Mrs. Curtis called the vice president at Washington by long distance telephone and permitted the bank representatives to talk with her father-in-law.

"But my husband isn't here," protested Mrs. Curtis. "I am certain that the matter merely had slipped his mind. He would pay you if he were here. Can't you wait?"

After a bit of haggling the banker agreed that the bailiff and his squad would be sent away, temporarily, if $400 were paid by wire. A messenger soon arrived with the relief fund.

"My son is on his way to Chicago now, and will pay you the rest," the vice president is quoted as saying.

Patrol Leaders To Have Meeting

New Castle And Ellwood City Girl Scouts To Meet At Wurttemberg December 6

Between 50 and 60 Girl Scout patrol leaders from New Castle and Ellwood City will meet together on Saturday, December 6, for a round table discussion concerning the duties of a patrol leader.

Miss Nance Pugh, director of New Castle troops, will be in charge of the meeting. The New Castle patrol leaders will be taken to the newly built "Little House" at Wurttemberg where they will join the Ellwood patrol leaders. The "Little House" was built by the Ellwood troops.

Local patrol leaders, with Miss Pugh the director, will leave New Castle in the morning, have lunch at noon in the "Little House" and return in the afternoon. It is probable that Miss Dorothy Thom, Ellwood troop executive and several commissioners from New Castle will attend the meeting.

Mothers, Mix This At Home for a Bad Cough

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a distressing cough or chest cold. It takes but a moment to mix and costs little, but it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any drugist. Pour this into a pint bottle; then fill it with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. The full pint thus made costs no more than a small bottle of ready-made medicine, yet it is much more effective. It is pure, keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It goes right to the seat of trouble, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes away the inflammation. Part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly upon the bronchial tubes and thus helps inwardly to throw off the whole trouble with surprising ease. Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of eucrosetin, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

ENDURING FATIGUE IN MID-AFTERNOON IS NOT ADVISABLE

Fagged System Invites Sickness, Inefficiency—Renew Vigor by Eating a Sweet

Medical investigations show that daily fatigue not only makes the system susceptible to illness and organic troubles, but also lessens one's efficiency. Tired people, especially those engaged in offices and stores, have difficulty in concentrating or "keeping awake" on the job.

Most business people find that four o'clock is their zero hour as far as vitality is concerned. To renew vigor at this time, many men and women take a moment to eat or drink something sweet. The results are surprising—almost instantly fatigue is overcome.

Medical men and food scientists who have experimented along these lines say that the renewed vigor is caused by the refined sugar in the food or beverage. Sugar nourishes the body very quickly and when this occurs fatigue disappears.

Americans, it is said, are more subject to business fatigue than any other nationality. However, American workers can quickly get candy, ice cream, cakes and beverages everywhere. A glass of water sweetened with sugar—the "athlete's cocktail"—is reviving. Most foods are more delicious and nourishing when flavored with refined sugar. The Sugar Institute.

He was made archbishop of Milan in April, 1921, cardinal June 13, 1921, and elected pope, as successor of Benedict XV, and crowned Feb. 12, 1922. The pontiff is, in orders, a bishop. What is the origin of the term "Uncle Sam"?

Uncle Sam, the familiar sobriquet of the United States government or people, is commonly said to have originated at the outbreak of the war with England in 1812, when someone, asking what the letters U. S. marked on packs and barrels, was facetiously told that they referred to "Uncle Sam" or Samuel Wilson, an obscure citizen of Troy, N. Y., said to have been an inspector or contractor. This story had not been found earlier than 1842 when it was given in J. Frost's "Book of the Navy." No doubt Frost copied it from some newspaper, but the story lacks proof. The term Uncle Sam has yet to be traced earlier than 1813 when we read of Uncle Sam's men, meaning United States customs house officers and are told that "Uncle Sam, the now popular explanation of the United States does not pay well." The term appears to have arisen somewhere in the north, perhaps in New York or Vermont.

WRITES FROM WEST

Phoenix, Ariz., Nov. 11, 1930.
Editor New Castle News,
New Castle, Pa.

Here we are nicely located in the sunshine of Arizona. The state is in progress here this week. On leaving New Castle I sold my radio. As I have always been a radio enthusiast in getting a new one told the dealer I wanted one that would bring in eastern stations on a good reception night.

I sure got one that does the work. While I have picked up stations from Mexico City on the south to Seattle on the north with numerous California stations until tonight the farthest east I reached was WLW in Cincinnati. But this morning I picked up WABC, New York and enjoyed KDKA most of the evening as good as we used to hear it in New Castle.

The program from the Pittsburgh school for the blind, the Armistice Day program, including the speech of General Pershing, Secretary of State Stimson and Secretary of War Hurley were well received. The time signal announcer said it was 45 seconds past 11 p. m. where here it was 9.

We have two good stations here, KTAR and KOY. During the day time from 9 a. m. until 4:30 unless the day is cloudy, which is unusual, these stations furnish our radio entertainment, but about 3 p. m. we pick up Denver, Chicago and other stations with good volume.

This is a wonderful climate in a very progressive city, and while we miss friends east, we are enjoying the fresh vegetables and fruit raised in this wonderful valley.

JOHN FLAHERTY,

Says Advertising Promotes Business

(International News Service)
WILKES BARRE, Pa., Nov. 18.—Advertising will keep the wheels of industry moving and newspapers are the best advertising mediums, C. S. Clark, director of advertising for the National Confectioners' Association, told representatives of the confectionery industry here.

"Advertising is, or should be news," he stated. "Advertising is telling the people what it is you have to sell in such an interesting way the public wants to buy. One illustration or picture in a newspaper is usually considered as good as a thousand words. If you do not advertise today, you fizzle."

Exhibit Of Childrens Books At Local Library

"Never have children's books been so colorful, so varied and so fascinating as they are today. Never has there been such freedom of opportunity for parents to re-capture the rhythm of child life and its interests by the intimate sharing of new favorites among books, along with the old and tried," says Anne Carroll Moore, supervisor of children's work in the New York Public Library and one of the best known authorities on children's literature in this country. All the staff at the New Castle free public library agree with Miss Moore in this statement. The children's books are not only better printed with beautiful materials, better printed, but have more genuine literary merit than ever before. Any one who desires to choose books for children would do well to look at the exhibit of children's books at the New Castle library. The exhibit will be open from one until five o'clock each afternoon this week, except Friday, and will be held in the newly decorated room in the basement of the building. Enter the library grounds by the North street gate, go around the west end of the building and down a short flight of steps and you will be in the new room and among the new books. Some one has said "Could we give one gift to every child, we should choose the love of books" and it surely will not be hard to love such books as these, many of the old favorites in new attractive dress and also many new titles are to be found here. This exhibit is part of the libraries observance of Annual Book Week, November 16 to 22.

Rural Teachers Urged To Be Mixers

Cannot Hope To Be Real Leaders In Community Unless They Do, Is Warning

(International News Service) LANCASTER, Pa., Nov. 18.—If rural school teachers are to be real leaders in their communities and in the friendship of all classes, they must be good mixers. That was the message delivered by Dr. Albert L. Hall-Quest, former member of the faculty of the University of Virginia, to the Lancaster County Teachers Institute here. "The fact that school teachers as a general rule are the holders of college degrees and classed among the intellectuals in small towns is one of the greatest barriers rural teachers must overcome," Dr. Hall-Quest declared.

"Actual ability to teach the required subjects, while an essential, is not the outstanding need of the rural instructor," he continued. "School teachers in small towns must have the ability to mix socially with the townspeople as well as instruct their children. While teachers are respected for their knowledge they are liked for their ability to play. And the rural teacher who is a fine instructor but a poor mixer will have a difficult time in having any new proposals considered by school directors."

"Every rural school teacher must contribute as much as possible to the social enjoyment and cheerfulness of the community. Every teachers' college in the land should have a course instructing teachers in various stunts and hobbies which will add to the sociability of the community in which they will teach."

Commander George Candiota desires a full attendance of the members. They are urged to bring their bugles and drums along as a practice session will be held at Candiota's home.

Vets Corps Will Meet This Evening

Commander George Candiota desires a full attendance of the members. They are urged to bring their bugles and drums along as a practice session will be held at Candiota's home.

Weigh Cars With Automatic Scales In B. And O. Yards

Weight Is Automatically Registered As Cars Pass Over Scales

Weighing railway cars in the yards of the B. and O. here is a lead pipe cinch to what it was several years ago.

In days of old, the cars had to be shunted onto the scales, the car brought to a full stop, and carefully weighed by moving the balance weights back and forth on the cross arms of the scales.

This is no longer done however, due to the inventive genius of some individual. The scales are automatically balanced and as the car runs onto the scale track, its gross weight is determined, and stamped on a card, very similar to the arrangement in a time clock. The car then passes off the hump and is switched onto its designated track where the train is being made up for various points.

A great many cars are weighed in the local yards every day, which accumulate from points between New Castle and Conneville. The same apparatus in the Conneville yards weighs cars from its district. With 55,000 or more cars being handled a month in the local yards, the time saved by this arrangement can scarcely be estimated.

'DUCKS' FOR APPLES

JAW IS DISLOCATED CHARLESTON, Pa., Nov. 18.—John Parker, 31, farmer of East Pike Run township, dislocated his jaw last night while engaging in an old-fashioned contest of ducking for apples in a tub of water. He was admitted to the hospital here.

The number of factories and plants using electricity for motive power in the Union of South Africa is now 3,000.

Thos. J. McCullough County Commissioner Knows His Highways

Has Had Something To Do
With Every Improved
Road In Lawrence
County

Served 16 Years In State
Highway Department,
8 As County Commissioner

When Thomas J. McCullough leaves the office of county commissioner on January 1st, 1932, he will leave behind him a record unique in public service in this county, and probably one not equalled in the entire state. With the exception of the half mile of macadam road which was laid years ago near Cascade Park, Mr. McCullough has had something to do with every foot of improved highway laid in Lawrence County. He will be completing 24 years of public service, sixteen in the state highway department and eight as county commissioner.

On the day he does walk out of the commissioner's office, January 1, 1932, he will be a "free man" for he has declared that he is through. "I will not be a candidate for reelection," he said, "not only for county commissioner but for any other public office. I will be 74 years of age and I expect to have some fun out of life."

Knows Highways
Each commissioner that assumes office in Lawrence County usually knows more about one particular thing than his colleagues. Tad Shields was a student of the taxation problem, Hon. George T. Weingartner was a business executive, Samuel R. Huey was a building contractor, P. O. Elder is an authority on bridge building, but Thomas J. McCullough knows highways. Knows them from building them, maintaining them, knows every type of them and knows them thoroughly.

Coming Assembly Lacks Space For Committee Rooms

Additional Offices In Downtown Section Of Harrisburg Are Leased

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, Nov. 18.—"Where'll we put the committees?" That is the question puzzling Deputy Secretary Walter G. Scott of the state department of property and supplies, as the convention of the general assembly draws nearer and he scouts the capital building for room where the legislative committees may work.

In an effort to relieve congestion in the main Capitol building and at the same time provide space for legislative committees without upsetting routine work of departments already housed in the capital, the state has leased additional offices in a downtown building here and will transfer the automobile control division of the department of property and supplies, and remove the geologic, geographic and survey bureau to a new downtown location.

Attempts to find space for the legislative helpers has revealed the growth of the state government in recent years. Although the highway department has been moved into the North Office Building and the Public Service Commission has taken up quarters in the same structure, the capitol building is still filled to overcrowding. More department offices will have to be moved or rearranged, Scott said, to provide additional room for legislative committees.

Enlargement of the department of property and supplies, creation of the revenue department by the last legislature and growth of the motor vehicle division of the revenue department have all tended to increase overcrowding in the capitol.

Removal of the state library to the new education building will leave considerable room in the library building, Scott said, but it is doubtful whether the removal will be made in time to aid in solving the problem of legislative committee space. Interruption of work on the education building by the fire of October 3, has set its completion back so much that it is doubted whether the building may be occupied before the end of the legislative session. The education building will also house offices but the library building is considered unsuitable for office room and will probably be given over to enlargement of the state museum.

The members of the Star of Wales lodge No. 60, True Iovites of America, held a meeting on Saturday, November 15, in the Emmanuel Baptist church.

Joseph Leyde filled his office as the president of the lodge and Daniel Hughes, the vice president, supported him.

The service at the Emmanuel Baptist church on last Sunday was a red letter Sunday in the history of the church. At Sabbath school a large crowd was in attendance and the superintendent, Griffith Phillips, called John Harvard to the front of the church and presented him with a nice birthday cake with 32 candles. Solos and readings were given by the members of the Sabbath school. At 11 and at 7:30 o'clock in the evening Rev. John Samuel of Martins Ferry occupied the pulpit and delivered two effective sermons.

Rev. Samuel is spending a few days visiting with his friend, John Bevan.

Our friend Samuel Jones is still in the New Castle hospital.

Practice was held last Sunday evening at the Emmanuel Baptist church by the big choir under the leadership of Miss Gladys Thomas in preparation for the grand concert which will be held at the church on Friday evening, November 28.

The friends of Rev. T. Williams of the First Congregational church are gratified over the fact that Rev. Williams has recovered from an illness.

SEVENTH WARD NEWS

Catalogue Books
At Ward Library

Catalogue For Use Of Public;
Other News Notes Of Seventh Ward

A big job has been practically completed—the cataloging of all adult books at the branch library in the seventh ward. The catalogue has been made for the use of the public. The record has been made alphabetically and books may be found under the author's name, book title or subject. Subjects are printed in red lettering. The cataloging of the books at this branch will greatly benefit readers and librarians. The record of books is on file in a case on the table in the library. Readers coming to the library knowing the title of a book they wish to take out, but not the author, can look it up in the file and find the author's name and easily find it on the shelves, as all books are alphabetical on the shelves under authors. Also persons liking certain authors can look in the file and find out the titles of books written by another author. Also books on various subjects are listed and will be easily found.

Last week circulation at the branch library did not quite reach the 900 mark. Circulation at this branch has been gradually increasing and last week between 860 and 870 books were given out.

CITIZENS CONFERENCE WITH OFFICIALS ON BRIDGE PROJECT

another at Lawrence street, to alleviate traffic conditions. There were two factions, each of whom felt that their own pet project, the North street bridge and the Lawrence street structure were the most important. The matter was taken up with the city and county authorities and the county agreed to build the bridges if the members of city council would provide the locations and approaches.

At that time the city authorities were strongly in favor of building the Lawrence street bridge first as they were moving the central fire department to a location on South Jefferson street. A meeting was called at which the county commissioners and members of city council were present, and it was agreed to carry through a program by building the two bridges, one in 1928 and the other in 1929.

The North street bridge has already been built, Mr. McBride stated. The city has provided the necessary land and has agreed to build the approaches to the Lawrence street bridge. The Carnegie Steel company has deeded the necessary property to the city for the south end of the bridge, he pointed out. All that was now necessary was to proceed with the work.

Genkinger Speaks. He called on Councilman L. G. Genkinger as the first speaker, representing city council and the Chamber of Commerce, as he is also president of the latter body.

Mr. Genkinger stated that the position of the city of New Castle and the Chamber of Commerce was that the bridge should be built. "If we go into the matter, we will find that the city has not gotten very many bridges in the last 60 years. My oldest memory is of a bridge across the Neshannock at the point where the old Rosena dam was located. The Mill street bridge is a monstrosity. It can't possibly take care of the traffic from the Washington street section.

"The city has spent thousands of dollars for approaches. A 60-foot thoroughfare has been laid out to connect with Jefferson street, so as to form an adequate approach from that direction, which would converge at Lawrence street.

"Next year, the city expects to improve Taylor street which will take traffic out of the 'neck of the bottle' and divert traffic off East Washington street. Perhaps the county commissioners have not the money for the proposition right now, but they can easily issue bonds. The city cannot progress without bridges. We will probably need three or four in the next ten years.

"Property values have depreciated because of a lack of bridges to carry off the traffic from the downtown district. We must have them to develop the city. We appreciate the money that has been spent by the city and county on good roads and other projects, but if the city does not have the money now, it can issue bonds, because this bridge will have to be built and the matter might as well be gotten over with.

Favors Bridge. D. S. Pyle, manager of the Shennango Works of the American Sheet and Tin Plate company was the next speaker. Mr. Pyle stated that he was heartily in favor of building the Lawrence street bridge. "Few of you people realize the question along East Washington street," he said. "I have staved down East Washington street from near Cascade park on a busy Saturday night and have had a hard time getting to my destination. With the improvements contemplated by council, this situation would be relieved. This thing has been talked over and agreed upon. I believe this bridge should be built now, then there are any others, they can come later.

John C. Allen, assistant superintendent of the Carnegie Steel company was asked to express himself in the matter. Mr. Allen stated that he was mostly an observer, but felt that a high level bridge farther up the stream would be of more benefit. "There is no question in my mind, but that now is the time to go ahead with improvements, but I feel a high level bridge would give more employment than the Lawrence street bridge. I feel that now is the opportunity time to build.

In reply to this, Mr. McBride stated that he did not feel there was any objection to a high level bridge being built, but that the committee which he represented had worked on the project, of constructing two bridges in the downtown district, and that an agreement to build these bridges had been signed by both the city and county authorities to that effect.

The matter of such a contract between the city and county was called up, and Councilman W. T. Burns, who had a copy of the contract in his pocket was asked to read it.

Contract Read. The contract or agreement, signed by all members of city council except Walter V. Tyler, who was ill at the time, and which was entered into in 1928, was then produced and read.

It specified that because of traffic conditions, it was deemed necessary to construct the two bridges, one at North street and one at Lawrence street, the city to provide the approaches and the county to build the bridges. A two-year program was agreed upon and adopted in which the contracting parties were to carry out their end of the program.

County Commissioner T. J. McCullough arose at this point and stated that he had signed the agreement under protest. "Messrs. Smith, Pearson and McBride said at that time, 'If you don't have the money, we won't ask you to build it.' We don't have the money and I don't think we should be forced to do it," he said.

Nominations for county commissioner will be held next year, and if any of you want in it, it is wide open. I'm through with it, however. I won't be rode into this, and I want you to understand that. There's too much Irish in me."

"Don't you have the money?" Mr. McBride asked him. "No, we don't," McCullough replied. "But at the time the matter was first brought up, you had the money and plenty more than enough to build this bridge, and you said so," McBride stated.

Rev. Joshua Speaks. Rev. C. S. Joshua, who was in attendance asked permission to speak on the matter and it was granted. He stated that he was firmly convinced that a bridge should not be built at Lawrence street. "I didn't know where Lawrence street was until last night," he said. "I started out to hunt for it and finally a policeman told me he would direct me to the spot. He pointed out where the bridge was to be built, and it is only 150 yards from two other bridges."

"A movement was organized some time ago for the construction of the Croton viaduct. I am interested in this from an employment angle. As far as relief is concerned, I believe that greater traffic relief would be afforded by a viaduct than by the Lawrence street bridge. "I preached a sermon on Sunday evening and you gentlemen might be interested in knowing about the reaction I received," he said. "I received hundreds of calls from every section of the city, and there was only one who had any doubt of the wisdom of building a viaduct."

"I ask you to consider this from the standpoint of our children. I am credibly informed that many parents in Croton and the upper East Side have had to take their children out of school because they cannot afford to pay carfare for them. "I have heard considerable opposition to the Lawrence street bridge. Many people have voiced their opinion to me on this matter. In behalf of the welfare of our children and in behalf of traffic relief, I plead for the immediate construction of a viaduct."

open. I'm through with it, however. I won't be rode into this, and I want you to understand that. There's too much Irish in me."

"Don't you have the money?" Mr. McBride asked him. "No, we don't," McCullough replied.

"But at the time the matter was first brought up, you had the money and plenty more than enough to build this bridge, and you said so," McBride stated.

Rev. Joshua Speaks. Rev. C. S. Joshua, who was in attendance asked permission to speak on the matter and it was granted.

He stated that he was firmly convinced that a bridge should not be built at Lawrence street. "I didn't know where Lawrence street was until last night," he said. "I started out to hunt for it and finally a policeman told me he would direct me to the spot. He pointed out where the bridge was to be built, and it is only 150 yards from two other bridges."

"I have heard considerable opposition to the Lawrence street bridge. Many people have voiced their opinion to me on this matter. In behalf of the welfare of our children and in behalf of traffic relief, I plead for the immediate construction of a viaduct."

Question Wisdom. Thomas H. Hartman, president of the Lawrence Savings and Trust Company, was asked to speak on the matter by Mr. McBride. "I am in favor of building bridges," Mr. Hartman said, "but I am inclined to be prudent in the expenditure of money when people are so hard up. I don't like to see taxes raised when people are as hard up as they are right now. I am in favor of building this bridge, but I question if the people have the ability to pay for it right now."

James M. Smith Sr. raised the question of the cost of the proposed bridge, and was told by Mr. McBride that it would cost about $150,000, in his opinion. The North street bridge had cost about $72,000, he stated.

"Why should it cost so much more?" Smith asked. S. D. Pearson stated that he felt it could be built for 20 per cent less right now, the way conditions were. A viaduct would cost a half million dollars, he believed.

County Commissioner P. O. Elder stated that he knew something about the need of bridges, but that he also knew something about the need of money right now. "We are hard up right now," he said. "We have had more forced on us than we anticipated, one proposition alone costing us $100,000. We would have to issue bonds and raise taxes. I don't think the people of the county could stand it. People come to us from all over the county and tell us they simply cannot pay their taxes this year. Just look at the sheriff's sales."

Not Time to Issue Bonds. "I don't think this is the proper time to build or to issue any more bonds. "Wouldn't it cost less money to build a bridge right now, and wouldn't it give employment to some of these people who are hard up?" he was asked.

Mr. Elder pointed out in reply that only $7,000 of the cost of the North street bridge went into common labor, which seemed to be the hardest hit right now. S. D. Pearson was in favor of letting the bridge contract on a 100 per cent labor basis, using as little machinery as possible. He said he believed there was less unemployment here than any place else in the United States.

County Commissioner C. C. Boyd stated that he was honest enough to admit that he had signed the contract previously mentioned, but stated that he felt he had made a mistake. "I ask you gentlemen here, if you have ever made a bad bargain?"

"We have been hard hit by the Willow Grove bridge and have been holding off on it as long as possible, but we have to go ahead and build it. The Perry highway also hit us."

"What do you mean, you made a mistake?" Councilman Genkinger asked. "Boy, in signing that contract," was the reply.

Doubts Relief In Project. County Solicitor John P. Lockhart was asked his opinion. He stated the county commissioners were willing to do anything in their power to relieve unemployment. He said there was doubt in his mind as to the amount of relief the building of the bridge would afford.

Referring to the remark about using no machinery on the bridge, he stated they would have no control over that. We would have to let the contract to the lowest bidder. "It is admitted that the city pays 60 per cent of the county taxes, and is entitled to consideration, but I doubt if this is the opportunity time to spend it."

"I feel more good would be done by allowing the taxpayers to spend the extra amount a raise in taxes would bring, in making improvements on their own properties. This would provide greater employment than this bridge would."

"This matter of a contract signed by the city and county is not a contract. I would have advised against signing it if I had been present. It is only a declaration of purpose. It is doubtful if the county commissioners should tie themselves up to an agreement which will embarrass them later."

Willow Grove Bridge. Mr. Lockhart outlined a number of projects confronting the county, which must be carried out. "The state is going to insist on building the Willow Grove bridge. Although the city may show the

Three-Day Hunt To Rid Forests Of Surplus Deer

Game Commission Hopes To Solve Problem By Special Season On Does

WILL PRECEDE
REGULAR SEASON

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, Nov. 18.—Again faced with a surplus deer population, the State Game Commission has decreed a special three day season when shooting of does will be permitted, and hunters over the state are polishing up rifles, anticipating the special opening now less than two weeks distant.

The special three-day doe season will precede the regular deer season opening December 1, during which only buck deer with two points to a horn may legally be shot. Pennsylvania, according to officials of the game commission, is one of the few places in the world where the question of keeping deer herds controlled has become an acute problem.

During the special doe season this year, 55,984 licenses will be available to resident hunters only, each entitling the holder to kill one antlerless deer, not less than fifty pounds in weight. Two years ago, in an effort to reduce deer herds, the commission opened the entire state to doe shooting during the regular fifteen day season in December. Shooting of bucks, except those with visible antlers, was forbidden. At that time, action of the commission caused widespread criticism. In several counties, suits were brought which had the effect of closing the entire county to hunting during the deer season. Although the commission had records of hundreds of deer starving to death in some sections of the state, sportsmen in general opposed the open season on doe. Doe shooting had not been permitted for fifteen years and the large number of deer in the state was attributed to that conservation measure.

Opposition to the plan was especially strong in sections dependent upon tourists and hunters for revenue and where the presence of almost domesticated deer was regarded as a business asset. Most potent criticism, however, came from districts where deer were just beginning to reappear after an absence of almost a century.

In planning for the special doe season this year, the commission took cognizance of such opposition and opened only those sections where deer are most plentiful. The season will affect less than one third the area in the state where deer are found.

In the open season two years ago only 25,000 does were killed, less than the commission hoped would be taken. The annual doe kill of bucks averaged between 15,000 and 20,000.

Complaints of farmers and tree growers in sections where deer are plentiful has compelled the game commission to seek ways of reducing the herds and incidentally the complaints. In some parts of the state, according to the commission, it has become almost impossible to raise crops unless they are protected by deer-proof fences. Private tree growers and even the Department of Forests and Waters have given up attempts to get seedlings started where natural deer browse is scarce. About 200,000 residents, and several thousand non-residents, hunters will take to the woods during this season, the commission estimates. And hunters are anticipating taking their limit when the special season opens November 27, as well as during the regular shooting period opening the first of next month.

Jones-Laughlin Keeps Many Men Upon Payrolls

Steel Plant Reports Having 23,000 Employees Drawing Wages At Present Time

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Nov. 18.—The Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation, with 23,000 men on the payroll, today reported that that number of active employees at the present time is only three percent less than the number of employees of a year ago with approximately 97 per cent of the workers drawing steady wages.

Although a majority of the employees are working on a less time basis, all are earning incomes, there has been no wage rate reduction and the mill of the company are operating on a 48 per cent of capacity average, the report states.

Retention by Jones & Laughlin of 97 per cent of its workers despite the fact that the mills operations have been cut to 48 per cent of capacity is due to the employment of about 2,000 workers in construction of new mills and plant improvements.

Dr. G. S. Bennet Begins Classes Tonight In Y. W.

The interdenominational Bible study classes in the Y. W. C. A. will begin this evening at 7:45 with Dr. G. S. Bennet, pastor of the First Christian church and an ardent Bible student, as the teacher.

All indications point to a large enrollment at this initial meeting this year as most of the Sabbath School teachers and workers who took up the course of study last winter were so highly benefitted by the lessons that they are enrolling again.

The life of the Apostle Paul will be taken up, and, as this comes in this year's course of Sunday School lessons, the teachers will receive much help in their preparation of the lessons by hearing Dr. Bennett.

Youngstown Court Case Being Probed

Charge Witnesses From Pittsburgh Pair For Testimony In Court

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Nov. 18.—County detectives today were investigating charges that witnesses were transferred from this city to Youngstown, O., and were paid to testify in a $200,000 damage suit instituted by Ralph C. Binder against the Youngstown Municipal Railways company.

Investigation of the charges begun by a grand jury in Youngstown yesterday was shifted to Pittsburgh shortly thereafter when Andrew T. Park, District Attorney, began a local probe.

County detectives today were rounding up several witnesses alleged to have been paid to testify in the case and believed to be residing in Pittsburgh at the present time.

Assistance Asked
District Attorney Ray Thomas, of Mahoning county, accompanied by detectives from Youngstown, appeared at Park's office yesterday and asked assistance in gathering the witnesses for questioning. Witnesses sought in the case were alleged to have accepted financial remuneration to testify against Binder and for the railways company.

George Fenton of Pittsburgh, said to be a private detective was taken to Park's office for questioning yesterday by county detectives Lawrence Klein and Philip Goldberg accompanied by the out-of-town sleuths.

Thomas questioned Fenton more than an hour but refused to reveal whether he had received any information which he can bring before the Mahoning county grand jury. Fenton was permitted to leave though subject to recall for questioning at any future time.

It was alleged in the charges before the Ohio grand jury that at least two county officials made overtures to the foreman of the jury in the case. The foreman was reported to have made a sworn statement to Judge George H. Gessner, of Mahoning county, that he was promised he would be "taken care of" should he bring in a verdict for the rail company.

Probe Is Ordered
Binder's appeal to a higher court after receiving a verdict against him in the original trial, was denied.

After the higher court's decision the investigation of the jurors alleged to have been paid was begun. At Judge Gessner's order, the September grand jury was ordered to reconvene and begin the probe.

County detectives were ordered by Park to round up a number of suspects today and remand them to the attorney's office for questioning. Thomas returned to Youngstown last night but was expected to return to Pittsburgh today to again communicate with Park.

New License Plates For 1931 Will Be Good On December 15

HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 18.—The number of automobile registrations for the coming year is now 70,000 less than on the same day last year, according to Commissioner Benjamin G. Eynon, of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles.

"Our records," said Commissioner Eynon, "show that the number of passenger car registrations for 1931 is 32 1/2 per cent. under that of registrations received for 1930 at this time last year, the number of commercial registrations is 28 per cent. lower and the number of all registrations 34 per cent. lower.

"These decreases may partly be accounted for by the fact that in 1929 we mailed registration applications fifteen days earlier than in 1930, but only partly. Perhaps the average owner has been the victim of the unusual times, or perhaps his optimism leads him to believe that through he apply at the last moment his procrastinatory sins will be forgiven him, through the efficiency of attaches of this bureau. But as was the case with Humpty Dumpty, all the king's horses and all the king's men can't get license plates to their destinations in time if the owner unduly delays his application.

"Tags for 1931 are legal on and after December 15. Owners who apply for new tags later than December 24 cannot expect to have their plate in time for January 1."

Traffic Problems Of Urban Centers Needing Solution

State Government Should Share In Highway Construction, Waldron Thinks

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Nov. 18.—Increasing urban population has shifted the sole responsibility of Metropolitan highway construction from the city and county and such responsibility should be shared in by the state government.

With this message as his theme, Sidney D. Waldron, president of the Detroit Rapid Transit Commission today told delegates to the American association of state highway officials in convention here that "There is an increased obligation upon each of the state governments to assist in the solution of the major traffic problems of the large urban centers."

Waldron cited the need for comprehensive regional planning of Metropolitan highways to take care of the daily flow of commuter traffic.

"Just as in the past, urban and rural revenues have been generously given to the creation of a new world-famous system of state and federal highways linking city to city, so should the attention of the various state governments today be turned to the great urban centers," he concluded.

State Farm Show Building Done

Huge Structure At Harrisburg
Covers Over Nine Acres
Of Land

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, Nov. 18.—"Another job finished and very satisfactory," declared Secretary of Property and Supplies Benson E. Taylor, after an inspection of the state Farm Show Building here.

With the exception of a final touch or two, the big building—nine and one-half acres in extent and one of the largest of its kind in the country—is ready for occupancy.

The building, aside from space for machinery and farm products, contains accommodations for hundreds of cattle, horses, sheep, hogs and domestic fowl of all kinds; a stock judging ring, a cafeteria, sleeping quarters, a room seating 1200 for group meetings, and space for the game commission and department of fisheries exhibits.

Cost of construction of the building, Taylor said, was approximately $1,500,000.

Water Supply Is Low In County

Farmers Find It Necessary To Conserve Water As Much
As Possible

Although there has been a considerable fall of rain throughout this district in the past few weeks, it has had little effect, if any, on the water supply of many of the farmers and the smaller towns of the county.

Springs and wells which have not been known to be so low in many years as they are at the present time, in spite of the welcome supply of rain that has been falling. In many instances they are so near dry, that it is only by exercising the greatest care that they are supplying the conservative needs of the farmers and small town inhabitants and such livestock as they have. In some instances, it has been found necessary to cut down on the washings in order to avoid the use of water that is extremely necessary for the cattle.

The farmers report that the top crust of the earth appears to be in excellent condition as a result of the fall of water in the past few weeks but apparently there has not been sufficient penetration into the depths of the earth to replenish the springs and wells.

It will take considerable more general rainfall to relieve the condition caused by the drought of the past summer.

Business Has Not Slumped On B. And O. Here

September Car Movement In Local Yards Is Greater Than 1926 And 1927

MUCH PERISHABLE FREIGHT IS MOVED

Business on the B. and O. railroad as evidenced by the number of cars handled through the local yards has not fallen off to any appreciable extent, the records here show.

During the month of September, over 55,000 cars were handled in the local yards, which is greater than the number which passed through the yards during the same period of 1926 and 1927.

In 1928 and 1929, the number was slightly in excess of this amount, but business conditions were different during these two months, 1928 being the peak year.

A great amount of perishable freight is handled by the B. and O. railroad, several trains containing around ninety cars passing through here each day.

Moving Grapes
Grapes, have formed the bulk of fruit shipments during the past few weeks, coming through here from the Pacific coast. Meat, milk, grain, and other perishable products bound from Chicago to Philadelphia, New York, and other eastern points are also handled.

As the train pulls into New Castle, coming from Willard, O., its first stop west of here, the engine is cut off and another stands waiting to take its place and rush the precious cargo to Conneville, the next stop.

These trains of perishable commodities are hauled as carefully and expeditiously as passenger trains and must be kept on schedule time.

Monday afternoon, when a News representative visited the B. and O. yard terminal, a train of fruit, meat, milk, and other products had just pulled in. It arrived exactly on scheduled time. The second crew did not have to leave here until 4:30, but by 4:15 the train was moving on its way towards Conneville again, slightly ahead of its schedule.

Mine Grievances To Be Presented

Car Loading Dispute Will Be Aired At Meeting In Hazleton

(International News Service)
WILKES BARRE, Pa., Nov. 18.—Grievances of miners of the Looze division of the Hudson Coal company will be presented for solution at a meeting of the general conciliation board of the United Mine Workers of America at Hazleton, Nov. 20, it was announced here by John Boylan, president of District No. 1.

Discharge of employees because, it is alleged, they refused to load more than four cars of coal per shift and discharge of a contract miner because he quit work at noon after loading four cars are among the grievances to be presented to the board.

The grievances were heard by Boylan and Major W. W. Ingle, president of the Glen Alden Coal company, sitting as a district board of conciliation here, but no disposition was made of the complaints.

DANGEROUS SYMPTOMS!

DON'T LET constipation cause headaches, dizziness, lack of pep. Or bring wrinkles, pimples, and a sallow skin to mar beauty.

It isn't necessary—when constipation can be overcome so easily. Just eat two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN daily. In recurring cases, with each meal. Relief is guaranteed.

ALL-BRAN is now even more delicious. New methods of manufacture have greatly improved it in texture and taste. Use this safe way and avoid dangerous pills and drugs. ALL-BRAN also furnishes iron to lend color to cheeks and lips.

Plucky New Wilmington Hunter Who Shot His Foot Seems Likely To Recover

Friends in New Wilmington have received word that Walter Plotts, 21, of near that place, who was terribly injured in a hunting accident near Coudersport, Pa., is likely to recover. Plotts is now in the Coudersport hospital, where he has undergone the amputation of his left foot.

Plotts has been in the habit of spending his winters trapping and hunting in the Pennsylvania woods. According to details received by his friends he was about to release a catch of game from a trap when his gun exploded. The charge caught his right foot and after binding the wound as well as he could he started to crawl to his automobile.

For three long hours he dragged himself over leaves, brush, logs and stones, arriving at his machine in a badly exhausted condition, owing to loss of blood and exertion. He then drove seven miles to Austin, Pa. Here a physician gave first aid and sent him to a hospital at Coudersport, where it was found necessary to amputate his foot.

Plotts was in a serious condition when he reached the physician at Austin. The terrible experience of crawling for three hours with continual loss of blood had him in a very weakened condition. The physician declared that nothing but his pluck and stamina had made it possible for him to live.

On several occasions he has hinted with that elephantine fineness of his that "if dey's anybody you want given do wokes, jes' lemme know who he is. Right?"

The Demon, I fear, is a little disappointed in me. Because I have refrained from nominating a candidate for "de wokes" he thinks I doubt his ability as a strong-arm man.

What The Demon lacks in grace and gentleness of mind he more than atones for in virility of character. Circumlocution and dissimulation are foreign to him. A straight line is the shortest distance between two points.

RIGHT AGAIN

An abortive attempt on the part of his wife to endow him with the elements of diplomacy was rehearsed by him for my benefit.

A friend of his, one "Di-mon" Toot' Cappy" is a "two-face guy," and The Demon has no use for two-faced guys.

He met "Diamond Tooth" the other day on Second Avenue. "Diamond Tooth" saluted and The Demon cut him dead.

"Well," says The Demon, "I'm tellin' de Missus about 'Di-mon Toot' an' whattya tink she says? She says- 'You hadn't oughta done dat,' she says. 'You mus' keep in good wud everybody."

"What did you say to that?" I inquired.

"Me?" said The Demon. "I don't say nuttin'. I Jes grab me cap an' beats it. What's re use o' arguin' wid a woman? Nix on dat stuff. When I argues I wants t' sock-an' I can't sock de Missus. Right?"

Local Lions At Farrell Dinner

Help Five Other District Clubs Honor District Governor Last Night

Headed by the officers of the club, a delegation of nearly 20 New Castle Lions motored to Farrell last night to participate with five other clubs of the district in a joint dinner session honoring District Governor Daniel Kramer of Reading.

Governor Kramer came from the eastern city especially for the occasion, and plans to visit other western Pennsylvania clubs before returning. He was a guest at today's meeting of the local organization.

While the state officer was one of the speakers last night, Dr. Harvey L. Watkins, superintendent of the Polk State Institute at Polk, Pa., delivered the principal address. He spoke on the work being carried out there.

Representatives attended last night from the Beaver Falls, Butler, Greenville and Oil City clubs, as well as from New Castle and Farrell.

The district governor accompanied the local party here after the meeting last night, and spent the night here. He was to leave this afternoon for a meeting in his honor at Erie tonight.

Council Has Not Named Sanitary 'Cop'

Reeves Will Discuss Appointment Probably At Next Meeting

It is not yet known if an appointment to fill the one vacancy in the city sanitary police force will be made by council Friday. At present Samuel Biven is serving as temporary sanitary officer. Recently the Civil service board presented a list of eligibles to city council.

It has been indicated that Councilman Reeves favors the appointment of Biven who passed the test. However, there are eligibles with higher percentages, and it would be necessary to vote them down in order to present Biven's name.

It is said that Solicitor White will be asked by the city controller to furnish him with an opinion relative to the status of Mr. Biven since the list has been presented. Mr. Biven served as emergency officer beginning shortly before the typhoid fever cases were discovered.

GETS TWO YEARS FOR KILLING GIRL

DIES TWO MONTHS AFTER TRUCK FALL

ROCHESTER, Pa., Nov. 18.—James H. McCoy, 74, died today at his home here from injuries received two months ago when he fell from a truck while visiting at the home of his nephew, James E. McCoy, Mechanicsburg. He was active in the United Presbyterian church.

One reason why doctors must do so much charity work is because filling stations demand cash.

By Central Press
NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The apple situation in Tammany Town is becoming acute. The saps who bought lemons in Wall street and for whose benefit the apple-selling scheme was devised are naturally the chief sufferers. Everywhere you turn today in New York you encounter an apple-seller. Push-cart peddlers have stuck "unemployment signs" on their carts and gone in exclusively for apples. Bootleg methods are in vogue. Values are being tampered with. Fruiteers have cut their prices. Grocers have reduced canned apple sauce.

The whole thing is apple sauce. Those who have really benefitted by the campaign are the apple growers and the newspaper columnists.

CHILD, 7, DIES

AS HOME BURNS

NEW PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18.—

Ruth, 7, daughter of Harry Hattery, suffered burns this morning that caused her death a half hour later at Union Hospital. Her mother, Mrs. Clara Hattery, 33, and her brother, Clarence, 10, were severely burned when two rooms of the Hattery home between Mineral City and Somerdale, 12 miles northeast of here, were destroyed by fire. The blaze resulted from kerosene in a can being ignited by oil which the mother had poured on a fire in a stove. The boy jumped from an upstairs window.

The Parent Problem

by GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Dr. Myers Suggests Help In Arithmetic

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.
Head Division Parental Education,
Cleveland College, Western Reserve University.

Some while ago I pointed out that many children finding arithmetic a nightmare, even in the fifth and sixth grade, had never mastered the simple number facts like 9 plus 7 equals 16, or 8 times 4 equals 32, and I suggested concrete ways of helping them learn these elemental facts.

Knowing the basic addition facts, a pupil may have trouble with column addition. By having them add columns of figures aloud you easily can discover his difficulty and help him overcome it. His biggest source of error always will be haste. He will want to put the answer down very quickly, telling you, perhaps that he must work fast at school. You cannot change the practice. Speeding there, in places, will go on insanely when your children are grandparents. But you can persuade your child while at home to work carefully and to strive to be accurate.

First assure him that he has all the time he needs; even then he will hurry. Put a premium upon accuracy always. It may take long, patient effort, but once you get into his sympathies you will win him to your way. You may be able to make him see that as he acquires accuracy, almost never making an error, he will be the better prepared to succeed when confronted by a speed test in school. You will lead him to see that the way to develop speed is to get accuracy first.

Why the teacher and the professor and supervisor who inspects the teacher's work has not arrived at this conclusion long since is more than you and I can understand.

No one has presented scientific facts which show that children develop speed by hurrying them. On the contrary, there are some researches published which support the common sense point of view. About 1918 I published one such investigation in this country, and a little later Sturt published another in England.

Set down a few problems in subtraction for your child, like these: 4006-537, 804-609, 6353-4257. Have him attack one of them, saying aloud what he does in each step, exactly what he thinks to himself. An evening or two might help him over his trouble in subtraction. If he has numerous specific difficulties, give him a number of exercises on each difficulty. Always you will be tempted to cover too much. Patience is what you should pray for eternally.

If the trouble is in long division, give him very easy problems at first, and short ones always, adding more complex ones gradually. Avoid even the appearance of anger at his errors or difficulties. End the work the moment you feel the slightest irritation or when he shows the smallest signs of confusion or weariness. Make the study period short. Ten minutes are much better than 50. Engineer the work so that he surely will succeed; then express enjoyment at his achievement; celebrate his victories.

Still Guard Homes Of Movie Stars To Prevent Kidnaping

Guards Changed By Police, But Denial Is Made To Kidnaping Plot

(International News Service)
BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Nov. 18.—Although new watchmen have been posted at the Harold Lloyd and Mary Pickford estates here, a triple denial was made today that the change in guards had anything at all to do with a purported plot to kidnap the two Lloyd daughters and the 15-year-old niece of Mary Pickford.

Joseph Reddy, representing Harold Lloyd, and M. A. McKay, business manager for Mary Pickford, stated that reports concerning a kidnaping plot were erroneous. Their statements were later supported by Police Chief Charles Blair who yesterday was quoted as saying the guards were posted as a precautionary measure.

"It was only a case of changing watchmen," said Reddy and McKay. "We know nothing of any kidnaping plots."

Chief Blair explained the guards' presence by stating that he had detailed one member of his department to aid at each home until new watchmen would be regularly employed.

It was not explained why both watchmen had been replaced almost simultaneously.

Thanksgiving Is Proclaimed By Gov. Fisher

Commends Spirit Of Helpfulness Which Is Being Shown By Public

URGES OBSERVANCE
WITH GOOD CHEER

THANKSGIVING DAY PROCLAMATION

The season is again upon us for the time-honored observance of Thanksgiving Day. The President's call has gone forth to the people of the Nation and the solemn admonition of his Proclamation will find response in the hearts and deeds of all the citizens of our Commonwealth. When we measure our blessings against our misfortunes we will find abundant reason for rendering thanks unto the Lord, for singing praises to His Holy Name, for showing forth His loving kindness through the year that is passing.

If the harvests have not been quite so plentiful, there is still enough in store for all our wants; if the rains have not been so copious, the waters still flow in sufficient abundance for our needs; if business is not so prosperous as usual, industry is still finding much to do; if some hands are idle from unemployment, there is still a great host at work. This is the time to look for the bright side and to radiate the spirit of good cheer and hope. Any trouble we may have will pass and the good we possess will abide with us to call forth expressions of gratitude.

The spirit of helpfulness to others is everywhere manifest and is to be commended and encouraged. Aid to others who need support and encouragement is the very embodiment of the sacrifice of thanksgiving. It is gratifying to observe the activities of public authorities, private enterprise, and public-spirited organizations, all uniting to promote the general welfare and alleviate individual distress.

The years have been blessed with an unusual measure of good health; industrial peace has prevailed to a marked degree; public order has been preserved and the laws of the land obeyed with increasing respect; closer and more neighborly relations have been established by the increased conveniences of travel and communication of intelligence; educational advantages have been greatly improved to meet the demands of pupils and students for greater opportunities in life; humanitarianism, both public and private, has found expression in more ample and generous provision for all forms of misfortune and dependency; we are free from the unrest that has disturbed the security of other nations and our Government is firmly established in the loyalty and affections of the people.

Therefore, let Thanksgiving Day be a time of homegathering, of good cheer, of public worship, and of thankfulness to Him who is the giver of every good and perfect gift. NOW, THEREFORE, I, John S. Fisher, Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, following the Proclamation of the President of the United States, do hereby designate and set aside Thursday, the Twenty-seventh Day of November, Nineteen Hundred and Thirty, as Thanksgiving Day to be observed by the people of this Commonwealth in the enjoyment of the home circle, in deeds of kindness and charity, and in prayer and praise at their accustomed places of worship, making acknowledgment to Almighty God for His bounteous provision and invoking His guidance for our Nation and State in the ways of peace and truth and righteousness.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the Commonwealth, at the City of Harrisburg, this tenth day of November, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and thirty, and of the Commonwealth the one hundred and fifty-fifth.

ELLWOOD CITY, Nov. 18.—Various civic organizations of Ellwood City are seeing to it that no poor family goes hungry or without proper clothing this Thanksgiving if they can prevent it.

The Women's club, the Kiwanis club and many other large clubs are making ready to distribute baskets to the needy families. The Castlewood club has a destitute family in mind whom they will help.

Anyone having old clothing or gifts of canned goods can aid some needy family by calling Mrs. Berwick Barton, chairman of the Civic committee of the Women's club or Derry Porter of the Kiwanis club. They will see that the things are collected and delivered.

State Health Secretary Warns, Nature Keeps Books

"Bookkeeping is the foundation upon which modern business is conducted. Moreover, no business venture can be successful unless it very accurately counts the cost involved. Indeed, the cost item is the factor around which the success or failure of an undertaking is built. Obviously this matter is therefore one of the most important bookkeeping features. Speaking literally, life is a business—the biggest and most vital one to every individual. Unfortunately, that view of it is not generally appreciated. And the utter lack of bookkeeping regarding it, in the majority of instances, results," said Doctor Theodore B. Appel, State Secretary of Health, today.

"If life were merely a synonym for a good time and selfishness, then it is quite true that very little bookkeeping and cost accounting would be required. But the main thing connected with life is to live. And in these days this matter is far from being an automatic function. The cost item therefore should loom large and prominent in the actions of all those who sincerely desire to live healthily, happily, and lengthily.

"Nature keeps books. Don't forget that. No matter how careless the individual may become in this respect, nature is never careless. And there is always a day of reckoning. To stay up habitually until all hours of the night, to indulge in enervating excesses, to use stimulants inordinately, and in short, to disregard the cost of improper living habits, is to take the road to physical impairment and shortened life.

"Therefore, weigh well the cost of your habits and general method of living. Don't get 'into the red' in this matter. Make of life what it is, a glorious adventure based upon vital and intelligent living. Keep books on your life and keep them straight. Only in this way can you hope for the profit which is your just due."

New Plant Will Be Started Soon

ZELIENOPLE, Nov. 18.—School Wick Co., Inc., of Pittsburgh, who recently purchased the Union Rubber Company plant, are making some repairs on the building, prior to beginning operations here. For the past week repairs have been made on the building, the roof and other minor repairs that were needed, and the first of the week work began changing the electric wiring, and turning on the electric current. Many changes were necessary in the wiring. The water and gas has also been turned on, and the telephones will be installed in the office, also in the very near future.

The plant, composed of a large brick building and also a large lot, was purchased recently by the firm from Pittsburgh.

It is expected that the plant will begin operation in about two weeks and will employ about 25 men and 25 girls, according to statements made by officials. Some of the men are skilled workmen and will come from Pittsburgh. There will also be some office employees, in addition to the other employees.

The Plant is located along the tracks of the B. and O. railroad in a very convenient and pretty place.

Bobby Jones Through With Tournament Golf Is Greatest In World

Attorney Robert Tyre Jones, Announces Self Through With Competitive Golf

Game Loses Man Who Ranks Above Them All—Holds Four Covered Titles

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Bobby Jones, the world's greatest golfer, announced Monday that upon the close of the 1930 golfing season he will "withdraw entirely from golfing of a serious nature." The announcement was made through the United States Golf Association.

Jones' retirement came as somewhat of a surprise even though he had indicated this year that he was turning of competitive golf.

"My intention was to make no announcement of retirement, but merely to drop out quietly by neglecting to send in my entry to the open championship next spring," said Jones. He added, however, he thought it advisable to make an explanation to the golfers of the country.

Signs Movie Contract.

Jones disclosed that last Thursday he signed a contract with Warner Brothers Pictures to make a series of movies explaining the methods he employs in playing golf.

For the past ten days Jones has been in New York. His presence here is now explained by the announcement of his deal with the motion picture concern. The amount he is to receive from the picture company was not revealed.

"I certainly shall never become a professional golfer," Jones said in his statement. "But since I am no longer a competitor, I feel free to act entirely outside the amateur rule, as my judgment and conscience may decide."

Makes Statement.

Jones' statement follows:

"Upon the close of the 1930 golfing season I determined definitely that I would withdraw entirely from golfing competition of a serious nature. Fourteen years of intense tournament play in this country and abroad had given me about all I wanted in the way of hard work in the game. I had reached a point where I felt that my profession required more of my time and effort, leaving golf in its proper place, a means of obtaining recreation and enjoyment."

"My intention at the time was to make no announcement of retirement, but merely to drop out quietly by neglecting to send in my entry to the open championship next spring. There was a time when I felt that my profession required more of my time and effort, leaving golf in its proper place, a means of obtaining recreation and enjoyment."

"On November 13, 1930, I signed a contract with Warner Bros. Pictures to make a series of twelve one reel motion pictures devoted entirely to exhibiting and explaining the methods which I employ in playing the various shots ordinarily required in playing a round of golf. These pictures are to be purely educational in character and it is the ardent hope of both parties that they will be of some value, first by improving the play and thereby increasing the enjoyment of the vast number of people already interested in the game, and second by creating an interest where none exists now among the many who may find enjoyment and beneficial exercise on the golf course."

Greatest In History.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Robert Tyre Jones Jr., of Atlanta, Ga., the world-famous golfer who Monday afternoon announced his retirement from competitive golf at the close of the 1930 season, was conceded to be the greatest player in the history of the game.

Although only 28 years old he has a long and enviable record—far above that of any other golfer of this or any other era.

His magnificent record was climaxed this year when he performed the Herculean task of winning four highly coveted championships—the British amateur, the British open, the United States National open and, finally, the United States amateur championship.

Jones is the only man who has won the amateur and open titles of both the United States and Great Britain.

Greatly Regretted.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Bobby Jones' withdrawal from competitive golf "will be greatly regretted by everyone," H. H. Ramsay, president elect of the United States Golf Association, declared in a statement Monday.

"Bobby Jones has unquestionably during his career made the greatest competitive record in the history of the game," said Ramsay. "Aside from that, though, his character and personality are such that he has become a popular world figure. His withdrawal from competition will be greatly regretted by everyone."

Report Confirmed.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 18.—Although Bobby Jones himself could not be reached due to his being in court Monday, his father, Robert J. Jones, confirmed a report that Bobby had quit competitive golf—not after 1930, but from now on.

"Yes, that's right," the elder Jones commented. "Bobby's through with golf; that is, he is through with competitive golf. He will, however, continue to play for his own enjoyment."

Bobby will devote all of his time to his law practice, according to big Bob, with an occasional round of golf mixed in.

Gridiron Gossip

Well it won't be long now, until the boys gather around the fraternity house stoves and relate how it should have been done. The season of football it seems never ends. They discuss it for 365 days. From one year to the next they talk it over, and think that it should have been this way and that. Why didn't Joe out of tackle? Why didn't the coach put Jim in the game sooner? You have probably heard this many times.

Westminster's band of Titans kind of shop worn by now, after taking several lickings this year, may find solace down in Bethany, West Virginia, this week end. The Bisons have not won a game all year and they figure that they may as well take the United Presbyterian boys into camp. Coach Dyke Beede has a strong team at Westminster and they are favored to add to the miseries already suffered by the Knights.

The Titans came out of that Thiel scrap unscathed.

The Ducks of Duquesne after that unexpected and wholly disheartening setback suffered at the hands of Geneva College, may find little to be glad about this week when they tackle the powerful West Virginia Laydenmen crew at Forbes Field. The Laydenmen are anxious to atone to the coach for that brief moment of that Geneva game when they allowed the Harpster boys to slip over the seven-pointer on them. That Geneva victory can be put among the various startling upsets. They even admit that down in Beaver Falls.

Geneva College will get that off repeated testing the sport scribes talk about this week, when they meet Allegheny College at Beaver Falls. The Meador boys are undefeated in Class B ranks. Dartmouth is the only team that has upset the apple cart for the Crum team. Geneva figures to find Allegheny over-rated and will be too confident of that elusive victory. This is bad anytime.

The W. and J. Presidents after that surprising upset at the Pitt Stadium Saturday, whereby they licked a very good Bucknell team, will not have a very pleasant afternoon this week. Down in the big bowl at Morgantown, West Virginia, the Presidents are going to find a big, brained and very clever Mountaineer crew awaiting their appearance. This game looks like a real one. The West Virginia team should win, but here I am trying to dope them again, and better men than I have failed.

The Pitt Panthers will rest this week, and they need it. The Sutherland machine met their match last week at Ohio State in Wesley Fesler and company. Penn State is listed next for the Panthers, and maybe they can howl then. Paul "Bulldog" Reider continues to show Coach Sutherland why he should be a regular. Reider dashed 58 yards for the longest gain of the Ohio State-Pitt game, and was responsible for the Pitt team making their lone touchdown. Reider will be a regular next year or else Niagara Falls will be dry.

SEEK ROOM-MATE
IN MAN'S DEATH
YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov. 18.—Police are seeking a former room-mate of "Eddie" Mason, 1408 Oakland avenue, whose dismembered body was found in an open field on a farm near Hubbard, Trumbull county.

The day Mason disappeared, his friends say, he was seen in an automobile with the room-mate. His clothes were covered with blood, while Mason's blood-stained automobile was discovered in Youngstown.

A parade of turtles down a Chicago boulevard is reported and it is said that many energetic persons were forcefully reminded of the orderly with which the police force is cleaning up the crime situation—The Milwaukee Sentinel.

Pro Golfers Mourn Passing Of Jones

Golf Tournament Without Jones Is Like Bread Without Butter

Many Golfers Would Rather Run Second To Jones Than Take Title

By LES CONKLIN
International News Service Sports Writer
Copyright, 1930, By International News Service

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Professional golfers got out their crying towels today and mourned the retirement of Robert Tyre Jones from active competition.

None of them wants to win the open championship next year because there will be no thrill in beating a field that does not include the Atlanta wizard.

The title, carrying with it an earning power of $50,000 from exhibitions and other sources, will be but an empty honor if Jones is not listed among the winner's victims.

The winner of the bauble in 1931 will be known not as the open champion, but merely as the man who captured the title when Bobby Jones was not competing.

Jones Is Needed.

This distressing state of affairs was revealed today in the wake of the emperor's abdication from golf to make a series of motion pictures on golf instruction.

"I would rather be second to Jones than win the open title without him," said Willie MacFarlane, who beat the Atlanta prodigy in a play-off for the title in 1925.

"An open tournament without Bob will fall flat," predicted Johnny Farrell, who defeated Jones in a sensational play-off in 1928.

"I wouldn't want to win unless Bobby was there," commented Little Bobby Cruikshank, who lost to the Atlanta in another play-off. In 1923, when Jones annexed the open crown for the first time after seven years of bitter disappointment.

All three were flabbergasted by the news of the champion's retirement. It took Cruikshank three minutes to digest the announcement when interviewed by International News Service last evening.

While he declared that the retirement of Jones would be a distinct loss to championship golf, the mighty atom from Scotland admitted that professionals would forget psychology and play golf in next year's open tourney.

Complex Is Gone.

"You know, Jones had a demoralizing influence of us," he continued. "We had the Jones complex—we couldn't play our best game—there was always the thought in the back of our heads that we couldn't afford to make a single mistake. But all the boys will be sorry to see him leave."

Cruikshank predicted that with Jones out of the way, Charley Seaver of California or Don Moe of Portland, Ore., would win the 1931 amateur championship. He ranks this pair ahead of Jess Sweetser, George Voigt, Maurice McCarthy, Johnny Goodman and Gene Homans. Seaver, according to the veteran Scot, is the outstanding find—long amateurs.

MacFarlane expressed a desire to see what Jones could do in active competition with the new and large golf ball which comes into use January 1st.

"With the new ball coming in, everyone would want to know what he would do with it in open competition."

"In one way I think Bobby is foolish to retire because he has proved himself the finest medal player in the world."

May Come Back.

Farrell thinks that the zest of competition and the "roar of the crowd" will lure the Atlanta barrister back to tournament play.

"I think Bobby will feel the urge to come back sooner or later," said Johnny. "If he does remain in retirement it will be a bad thing for professional golf, but will stimulate interest in amateur golf. He is so far outclassed in his field in the amateur tournaments that his competitors had little chance."

Farrell made the point that Jones has helped professional golfers by keeping interest in the sport alive and thus causing thousands to take up the game.

"Both Gene Sarazen and I made as much money on exhibition tours during the past two years as we did in years when we held the open title," he concluded. "We have Jones to thank for that."

A "recruited" player, evidently is any extra good one who accepted the other school's proposition instead of yours.

SENIORS WIN BY FORFEIT

According to William L. Klee of the Inter-Class football league, the seniors defeated the Juniors on Monday afternoon by default. The Juniors failed to show up for a scheduled game, this giving the Seniors a win by forfeit.

Maybe rural population just seems to be decreasing because "metropolitan districts" include so many farmers.

YALE LOOKS TO BOOTH IN BATTLE WITH HARVARD

Harvard defeated a good Yale team last year despite the efforts of the Elis' premier star, Albie Booth. However, Yale adherents expect Booth to reverse results Saturday, Nov. 22, when the ardent foes collide in the Yale Bowl in New Haven. Yale led the edge in the series with 25 victories to 17 for the Crimson. Six games ended in tie score.

Bonfire Ceremony For Union Champs

Five Hundred Celebrators Share In Outdoor Festivities Monday Night

Approximately 500 students, parents and alumni of the Union high school gathered around a huge bonfire at the Scotland Lane grounds last night to celebrate the victory the football team won on Saturday. The win gave them the Class B championship of the county.

Earlier in the evening a large pile of boxes, brush and fire wood had been erected for the occasion.

While the fire was being lighted, a football dummy was dragged over the field in an informal ceremony, after which he was tossed on top of the pile and left to the mercy of the flames. In the light of the flames the students gave cheers for the team. Each member of the team was given a separate cheer and carried around the fire on the shoulders of his schoolmates.

The students then formed a line and commenced a smoke dance, going through the crowd and around the fire, cheering to show their appreciation for the much-coveted victory.

After the flames died down the students gathered closer around the fire and sang school songs until a late hour before going home.

Lawther's Eleven Wins Sixth Game

Former Westminster Coach Having Great Success At Freeport, Long Island

Coach John D. Lawther, of Freeport, Long Island High School, is having more than ordinary success with his football team this year. On last Saturday the Lawthermen rang up their sixth straight victory. The victims were Pikes Hill High of New York, and the score was 29 to 0.

Freeport High has not been scored upon this year. They have a very strong team, and are sensations on Long Island. Lawther has instilled a brand new system at Freeport and has the team clicking smoothly. Previous to this year Freeport was just another high school team, now they are up the "ladder."

Lawther will no doubt have a fine basketball team, also because this is Johnny's sport you know.

Lawther is well known in the Tri-State District having coached New Wilmington High and later became the "wonder coach" at Westminster where he turned out several championship basketball combinations.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

Tony Herrera, the "bobbin" Men knocked out Joe Glick, New York, in the seventh round last night at Pittsburgh. He laid Josephus low with a left hook to the stomach that paralyzed Glick's nerve system. The Gothamite floored Herrera in the first. Tony knocked down Glick in the second and paved the way with rights to the chin for the kayo in the seventh.

Frank Wykoff is now recognized as the "fastest human" his mark of 9 2-5 seconds for the 100 yard dash having been recognized yesterday by the A. A. U. moguls in session in New York City.

The top prize for the Army-Navy football game to be played for the aid of the unemployed will be fifty smackers. The game is to be played at the Yankee stadium, New York, December 3.

Ray Eberle who commenced his career in boxing as an announcer at the Jolly bowl has turned promoter and will fare into the field of chance as proprietor of a club at Rochester, Pa.

The blow that laid Joe Glick low last night in Pittsburgh is the same kind of a punch that Danny Kramer employed to stop the upward ascent of Eddie Weigant who romped around here as a featherweight.

During the past few months much has been heard of Mickey Solomon but it is anticipated that as soon as boxing starts here Solomon will forget his last knockout, rally into training and seek glove honors again.

It is a certainty now that Ralph Gardner will proceed with arrangements for the Ne-Ca-Hi post-season game as the committee to handle it has been named. The men are Dr. C. C. Green, Mayor Gillespie and W. J. Offutt.

Start Practice At Shenango High

Having concluded the 1930 football season, Shenango High school will now turn its interest to the forthcoming basketball season which is not very far away. Coach Johnson stated this morning that preliminary practice sessions started last week.

Practices have begun so as to give the coach enough to see just what kind of material he has for the basketball season. Like other years Shenango will be a member of the Class B school League.

Turtle Creek Hi Meets Locals On Thanksgiving

Has Second Crown

Tony Canzoneri, former featherweight king, now trains to defend his second title, the lightweight championship of the world, which he recently won from Al Singer by a one-round knockout.

Games May Have Important Bearing In W. P. I. A. L. Race; Locals Have Rest Day

First Meeting Between Schools Since 1924 When Locals Won Championship

Workouts in preparation for the final game of the 1930 season will probably start this afternoon for the New Castle High school football team. Following their impressive victory over South High of Youngstown on Saturday, the boys were given a rest day on Monday.

Turtle Creek Union with one of the best teams in the history of the school will meet the local eleven on Thanksgiving Day at Targart Field. Turtle Creek has been tied several times this season but has yet to be defeated.

The meeting this season between these two schools is the first since 1924 when New Castle defeated the Unionites in an important W. P. I. A. L. contest. This season the game between New Castle and Turtle Creek, again is another important schoolboy contest that may decide the league champs. A win for New Castle will place it right on top of the list.

A defeat for Turtle Creek will eliminate that school from any possibility of winning anything due to the ties. To make the story short this game is one of the important ones carded in Western Pennsylvania schoolboy circles.

Field Club Caddies Will Be Banqueted

Big Time Is Being Arranged For Them On November 20th At Y. M. C. A.

Caddies of the New Castle Field club, to the number of approximately 110, will be entertained and banqueted on Thursday, November 20 at the Y. M. C. A. under the auspices of the Golf Committee of the club. It is the annual occasion on which the club entertains the boys who have performed so faithfully throughout the golf season.

The Golf Committee consisting of Dr. W. P. Feich, P. H. Bridenbaugh, John Offutt, James Matthews and W. M. Nunn will be present and supervise the banquet. The arrangements for the affair are being made by George Long and W. M. Nunn.

The boys eligible to attend this event will get their tickets for the event from Angelo Meney, the caddy master at the Field Club golf course, prior to the affair.

An excellent feed will not only be provided for the boys on this occasion, but arrangements have been made for the boys to disport themselves for an hour, beginning at eight o'clock on that evening, in the Y. M. C. A. pool. The dinner will be served at 6:30 o'clock.

Caddies of the Field Club have been looking forward to this event and will make the most of this opportunity of having a good time. The committee in charge is doing everything possible to make the affair the most successful of such events held in many years.

Keystone Eleven Wins Three Games

Playing championship football, the Keystone eleven romped home with a 20-0 triumph over the South Side Tigers. On the following Saturday the Division Stars fell victims to the same team by a 13-0 count. The third victory came on November 16 with the West Side Juniors the victims by a 20-0 score.

The following riders have made a creditable showing of themselves as members of the Keystone team this season; Campbell, Todd, Sheldene, DiCarlo, George, Biondi, and Rosetti. The Keystone are after games with any bantamweight teams in the city or county. For games call 5319-J and ask for "Ving" between 5 and 6 o'clock.

Irish To Test Northwestern

Notre Dame Has Big Hurdle To Get Over Saturday With Northwest-ern

YALE-HARVARD TEAMS READY

By COPELAND C. BURG
International News Service Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Football's mad dance whirls itself into a near climax this Saturday with the traditional clash of Yale and Harvard in the east, California and Stanford in the west and a big golden highlight splashing the mid west through the meeting of Northwestern and Notre Dame.

Notre Dame's tilt with the Purple this week in the first of three awe-inspiring games the Irish must win to finish the season undefeated, for after Northwestern come Army and Southern California.

Neither Notre Dame or Northwestern has been beaten or tied and both have met formidable opponents. The winner of the game may lay claim to the National title along with Alabama and Washington State should the latter two conclude their seasons with untarnished records.

Savaldi Gave

There was some gloom at Notre Dame today owing to the withdrawal from classes of "Jumping Joe" Savaldi, famed Irish fullback, but that gloom was like a Christmas nekkie compared to the heavy fog settling over Cambridge as Harvard prepared for the Yale Bulldog. The Crimson has not won a game in five Saturdays and scored two lonely touchdowns against nine for their opponents. But all this will be forgotten and Coach Arnold Horween not only forgiven but hailed as an all-conquering Alexander if Harvard can win over Yale this Saturday.

California and Stanford will renew their ancient war, and like Harvard and Yale, cruel blows on their season's records will be dealt like dew for a victory this week-end. Both teams are suffering from great humiliation and injured pride for they were soundly thrashed and sent back to their tradition-baked halls by their arch enemy, Southern California.

Wash. Nov. 18—If the interstate commerce commission authorizes the New York, Pittsburgh & Chicago railroad to build a new line across Pennsylvania from Easton to Etna, at Pittsburgh, the road is prepared to assure President Hoover's emergency employment committee that standard wages will be maintained.

Further, he said, every effort will be made to cooperate fully with whatever measures may be suggested to the road by federal and state government of Pennsylvania to assist in relieving unemployment conditions.

Final arguments on the road's application to build this 284-mile line will be heard today by the commission.

Evans said that 20,000 men eventually would be employed on the construction if it is approved by the commission. It will involve ultimately an expenditure of $177,000,000.

The project, sponsored by L. F. Loree, is opposed by eastern railroad on the ground that it would divert traffic from roads already long established.

Four Hours—Business District Threatened

(International News Service)

SCRANTON, Pa., Nov. 18.—Half of Scranton's fire apparatus for four hours early today battled a fire that caused damages estimated at $200,000 and for a time threatened the business district of West Scranton.

The fire, origin of which was not immediately determined, broke out in the Hyde Park lunch room at Main and Jackson streets.

It swept through the building and leaped to one housing the Jenkins drug store, which was gutted by the blaze.

Fire apparatus from all sections of the city was summoned to the west side.

Titans Close Grid Season Saturday Against Bethany

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Nov. 18.

A football season marked by promise and high hopes in September, shattered by unexpected reversals, and climaxed by a weird defeat at the hands of Thiel, will be closed by Westminster Saturday afternoon at Bethany when the Bisons, defeated in every game this season, are met.

Westminster has but three victories in eight starts. Lack of offensive power has kept the Titans from making the best season in recent years.

In the Allegheny, Geneva, and Thiel games, many opportunities to score were lost because of this need of punch in the backfield.

The one bright spot throughout the season has been the sterling line play of the Titan forward wall.

Westminster has defeated Bethany in the last two games played between the two schools, but will find the Bisons fighting for the first victory of the year Saturday and therefore hard to beat. Bethany has a good team, but five hard games away from home with opponents like Washington and Jefferson, Colgate, and Pitt, killed the spirit of the Bisons and their new coach, John Knight.

In the Thiel game two weeks ago, which the Lutherans won by a 7-6 score, Bethany found itself against an opponent its own size. Against Westminster Saturday the Bisons will again have a chance to show their stuff, and the Titans will have to play their best to win.

The stage is set. Our Hero is in the wings ready to carry away honors to thundering applause—but will he?

The stage is the Yale Bowl. The setting the 1930 renewal of that classic quarrel, the Yale-Harvard football game. Our Hero, yes, yes, you guessed correctly—Mr. Albie Booth, the Mighty Atom.

Albie is going into that game for REE-VENGE! He is going in with set purpose of humbling the crimson-clad minions of old John Harvard.

New Haven to a man expects him to do that. Cambridge and Boston are wont to pooh-pooh the idea.

If Albie gets his vengeance—ah, but will he?—Yale men and Mr. Booth himself can forget that embarrassing moment of last fall when touchdown, had it materialized, would have turned the tide.

In that game Albie was just the Little Boy in Blue. This year he hopes to be the Mighty Atom. Saturday and Harvard's ability to stop Albie's flashing attack can only answer that.

Of course, Yale-Harvard games rarely are battles between a star and a team. These games, because of the significance each side gives to this particular contest, are usually great team battles.

Yale is doped to win. The squad has proven itself one of the best teams in the east. Harvard has been only fair. Yale expects to win and with reason. However, good Yale teams have been upset by mediocre Harvard elevens before.

There isn't a man on the Yale team who has played in a victory over Harvard. Yale's last win came in 1927 when Captain Fay Vincent and other seniors were freshmen.

Though Harvard has won the last two games, Yale holds the edge on the series with 26 wins against Harvard's 16. Six games were ties. In the last 10 years Harvard has won five games and Yale four, the 1925 fracas being a 0-0 tie.

Utilities Rally After Depression At Start

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Prices in all sections of the market were depressed in the early trading today by the renewal of selling pressure from the same sources as in yesterday's reactionary market. Uneasiness over a further decline in steel output, to be shown in the usual surplus this afternoon, further cuts in mid-continent crude oil and tardiness in the business recovery were all reflected in the slender demand for stocks from the outside.

Trading slowed down as prices settled to the lower levels, and the market appeared to be entering another period of dullness. The bears were not inclined to press their advantage, having witnessed the loss of about half the ground gained in last week's five-day rally. Most of the active stocks struck bottom a point or two below yesterday's final prices, from which level moderate rallies were made.

Sears Roebuck's 2 1/2 point rally to 50 was the outstanding feature of the specialties the stock deriving strength from the declaration of the regular cash and stock dividends. The Amusement stocks recovered all of their lost ground in the second hour, and most of the Utilities rallied. Auburn led an upward move in the motors, with a 4-point jump to 79 1/2.

Coppers and Steels made moderate recoveries in the same period, weakness in Transamerica reflected uneasiness over the banking situation in the middlewest, where nearly thirty banks have been closed since Saturday.

Commodity markets were slightly irregular, and call money unchanged at 2 per cent.

JUDGE CHAMBERS AMONG SPEAKERS

Celebrating the 40th anniversary of the First Catholic Slovak Men's Union of America, a large crowd of people gathered at headquarters on Moavia street, Sunday. A splendid program was presented and addresses were given by a number of very prominent people.

Judge James Chambers spoke on Sunday evening, and among those present was Adolph Green, manager of the People's Saving and Trust Bank, priests and men from headquarters in Pittsburgh.

Sunday morning a high mass was sung for the living and the dead and all members received Holy Communion.

In the evening the speakers gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Klamar where there awaited a dinner prepared and served by Mrs. Louis D. Zurawsky and Mrs. J. S. Klamar.

After dinner they went to the St. Michael Slovak hall. It was beautifully decorated with national colors, red, white and blue and in the center of the stage there was a picture of Reverend Stephen Purdek, who was the first man to organize this organization, in 1890. On each side of this picture draped a beautiful silk American flag.

The audience already were present when speakers arrived. J. S. Klamar greeted the audience. Rev. Kapitan, pastor of St. Michael's church, said the prayers.

Miss Mary Taracko, who was dressed in a most beautiful colored Slovak costume, was called to direct in singing an American hymn. Then J. S. Klamar appointed Adolph Green as the leader of the evening.

Mr. Green in his speech said that this organization is not only to give benefit to the sick, but it is to unite the Slovaks and to make them good, loyal and true citizens.

Next speaker was Judge Ederly from Donora and a supreme president of the financial committee. Rev. Kustek of Hazelton, Youngstown, spoke of the organization from a religious point of view. Mr. Novak, the supreme treasurer of the organization, was present from Pittsburgh and gave a splendid

Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations
Of Interesting Things Around New Castle

Saw a new kind of pickpocket in the police station the other night, and he was going through a cop's pockets. Young lady was in with an animal she called a kinkajou bear, an animal about the size of a good sized maltese cat, with the proclivities of a monkey. Sometimes known as a honey bear and has a screen like a brake band that needs oil.

The lady goes for unusual pets it seems for in a little while she came in with a cotamundi (and I hope that's the way to spell it). This animal looks like an opossum that has a nose on it like an aviator's windsock. Said to have one of the keenest senses of smell in the animal kingdom and with a snout like that it should be able to smell a rumor a mile away.

One lad who was brought in at the time for being a trifle oiled, took a look at the cotamundi and said he was off the stuff for life.

One of the truck drivers of the city has solved the problem of answering thumb jokers. He got tired yelling "No" to the boys as he went by, so out on the dashboard of the truck painted in letters anybody could read is a sign "NO".

Now that Bobby Jones has retired seems like some of the rest of the boys can regain their interest in golf. As long as Bobby was playing the answer was in before he teed off. It got rather irritating to the professionals no doubt, to have their chance of gleaming the gilt knocked out of their hands by an amateur who didn't cash in on his trophies.

But Sir Robert has fallen for the jungle of the jack. He isn't professional, merely making 12 single reel films demonstrating how he plays golf. For all of which he will receive a slight compensation, something like a quarter of a million dollars.

With his passing from the competing amateur ranks goes the world's greatest golfer, not alone the greatest at the present time, but probably the greatest golfer ever to play the game. And smart boy that he is, he is retiring when he has possession of the four major golf cups of the world, the British open and the British amateur, and the American open and American amateur.

One of the few cups he hasn't got is the championship of the New Castle Municipal club. And the boys are still playing out there. Come by the other afternoon and saw a flock of cars outside that seemed to indicate 50 or 60 golfers were on the course.

Don't ever make a mistake concerning the Spanish-American war. It the past three days this corner of your great family newspaper has been dodging arguments on every corner. The statement was made that the Spanish war was shorter than the World war.

And if you think that didn't start something. One chap sent in some government statistics showing that the Spanish war officially lasted four years and two months. This included the island service too, no doubt.

It also loosed a flood of reminiscences. Clare Stockman recalled that the New Castle company that went out was the only volunteer company in America to have the officers the men elected sworn in by the government as their commanding officers.

On the way to Porto Rico, so Clare Stockman says, the boat in which they were travelling ran into heavy weather before they got to Cape Hatteras. A lad named Hannon, of DuBois, got seasick, oh very afraid he would die one minute and afraid he wouldn't the next.

As they were passing the cape the ocean got rougher than ever and one of the boys said to Hannon, "The ship's going down". Hanging on to a stanchion for support he replied, "I don't care whether it goes up or down, if it will just settle for a few minutes."

Refuse Bread Without Butter

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Nov. 18.—Isadore Wisotsky, a baker, had read much about the plight of hungry unemployed and resolved to do something about it. He baked 800 loaves of bread, loaded them in a wagon and set out to give them away.

He worked for two hours in what he thought were the poorest sections of Brooklyn. Urging his product upon one woman he was met with the cosmic rejoinder, "What good is bread without butter?"

In the end Wisotsky gave it up. He drove back to his bakery with 400 loaves that he had been unable to dispose of.

Versatile Davis Trio Brings Applause At Church Fund Program

Dramatic Readings, Songs, Piano Solos Rendered By Father, Mother, Daughter

The versatile Davis family returned to the Epworth M. E. church Monday evening to give an evening of entertainment for the benefit of the church's building.

The family trio accomplished their desire to swell the fund. Applause greeted the Davises even before they commenced an unusual program of dramatic readings, the singing of negro songs and piano solos. For the Davises are well known to the Epworth congregation. Homer B. Davis, the father, was pastor of the church until 1926. Today he is the spiritual head of the First Methodist church of Sharon.

Mrs. Davis and the daughter, Lucille Davis, were the other members of the acting-singing troupe.

A large portion of the concert was taken up by Miss Davis' dramatic selections and characterizations. She recited short works of Eugene Field, James Whitcomb Riley, Paul Lawrence Dunbar, F. Herold and Desprez, and her parts ran the gamut from such sentimental poetry as Riley's "That Old Sweetheart of Mine" to a scene cutting from the famous story, "The Lion and the Mouse."

Rev. Davis impressed his hearers with humorous anecdotes and proved that he is a poet as well as a punster. He recited a pair of rhymes of his own composition: "I Have Seen a Lot of Living" and "The Old Farm on the Hill". The latter poem written by the minister upon a visit to his old homestead.

Mrs. Davis' excellent piano solos brought her applause. She aided her daughter in the rendition of two marches, played in duet form on the piano. The marches were "On to Victory" and "Banner of Victory".

Miss Davis dressed in an old time costume for her characterization of "Aunt Abby", and that old woman's recollections as she studies the family album in the light of two oil lamps—the church electric lights were put out for the scene—were worth witnessing.

For the children in the audience Miss Davis recited Field's famed tale of a gingham dog and calico cat and the scuffle that both had in the nursery.

It was an evening well spent.

Cars Kill Five Bucks In Week

Dentist's Auto Wrecked In Collision With Buck Near Butler

BUTLER, Pa., Nov. 18.—When Corporal J. S. Kennedy and Patrolman C. H. Blocker of the Butler unit of the state highway patrol were returning from Kittanning at 2:30 o'clock Monday morning, following investigation of a fatal automobile crash there, they found an automobile parked at the roadside, eight miles east of Butler.

Investigation revealed the body of a large buck deer in the radius of the light of the parked machine. They found Dr. L. M. Anderson of Plumville, an Indiana dentist, in the car. Dr. Anderson explained to the patrolmen that he was unable to stop his car when the deer crossed the highway.

The force of the impact damaged a front fender of the car and smashed one of the headlights, and an antler of the deer penetrated the radiator.

The buck is the fifth within a week to be killed on the highways. One was killed at Oneida, another at Slippery Rock, a third on the Prospect road and another was hit by a Butler-Harmony car.
